THE FIZZLE OF THE FIGHTERS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY FRANK C. FILLEY.

One night, into Windust's I stopped for a stew;
I picked up the CLIPPER, its columns read through,
That great sporting journal that's known far and near,
Where sporting news, latest and freshest, appear;
Horse racing, billiards, base ball, aquatics,
And leader in chief of the critic's dramatics.
Having finished my stew—done in beautiful style—
I called the neat waiter to bring me a smile;
He brought me a Bourbon, but made it too steep,
It soon made me drowsy, and I fell asleep.
My thoughts wandered on, still awake to the theme,
And this is their purport and this is my dream:—
Right same 'fore my vision a great horrid figure,
As large as Goliah, if not something bigger;
His head was enormous, his eyes quite a fright,
And they glistened and glowed like an engine's head-light,
And the great ugly mouth, as it opened to grin,
Showed rows of great teeth like small gravestones within;
His chest seemed as large as a Jersey hay-stack,
And was fifteen feet through from the breast to the back;
His legs they were lengthy, sixteen feet and one half,
Four feet round the thighs and two feet round the calf;
While the size of the shoes on his feet that he wore
Was as large as the gig of a smart sloop of war;
His great knotted arms he couldn't keep still,
But swung them about like the sails of a mill.
His fist was a wonder—a regular smiter—
I knew by the name 'twas O'Baldhead the fighter;
He opened his mouth like a great double door,
And his voice issued forth in a terrible roar;
"Come on all ye fighters," he cried in great scorn
"And I'll make you all sorry yese ever was born.
I challenge ye all, by the rook of Cashell,
If ye come up forninst me I'll make ye smell hell."
As O'Baldhead, the giant, thus vented his wrath,
Another great figure loomed up in his path,
Not as large as O'Baldhead, but quite as defiant,
And he scowled like a fiend at the great Irish giant.
His black eyes looked wicked—he seemed rather tipsy—
He was sort of a cross 'tween John Bull and a gipsy;
His berry brown skin shone as bright as a racer,
I knew in my dream 'twas the champion Macer;
He swung round his arms like the yards of a ship,
And gave Ned O'Baldhead a taste of his lip;
"You're a bloody old duffer," the Macer did yell,
"And you're not on the fight, as you know blarsted well;
Give over your blowing and do the square thing,
And meet me, the Macer, in the great magic ring."
And then, like Ned Forrest, he beat on his breast.
"Oh, cork up," says Baldhead, "and give us a rest;
I'll fight ye for money, I'll fight ye for fun,
And I'll knock your two Gipsy eyes slap into one."
The money was raised as the fighters grew bolder,
And a brave little man was then chosen stakeholder;
They talked through the papers and blew off their chaff,
Some folks shrugged their shoulders and other did laugh.
At length they decided in August to fight.
At a meeting at Harry Monagan's one night,
They decided they'd fight on Virginia's shore,
And the tickets sold fast at five dollars or more.
The boats started off with a crowd rather mixed,
The shore it was reached and the ring it was pitched;
The form of O'Baldhead now towered on high,
And soon in the ring his old cap he did sky;
And quick from the opposite side of the ring
The bold gipsy Macer his castor did fling.
Then both of the fighters, with a bound and a spring,
Stood forninst the other inside of the ring.
Then methought in my dream that they dwindled in sight,
And seemed to grow smaller in breadth and in height,
The crowd yelled them on with oaths energetic,
And words flew around not the least bit poetic;
And still their proportions grew visibly small,
That they'd soon be played out was apparent to all.
They grinned and they sparred and kept jumping about,
And kept growing smaller and soon fizzled out;
And the spot where the great fighters stood on the grass
Not a vestige was left but a strong smell of gas;
As the crowd in their anger like devils did yell,
And the gas still continued to issue and smell,
I awoke with a start, jumped up with a scream,
And hastened to write for the CLIPPER my dream.

THE FATAL LARIAT.

BY ORION.

"What does that pile of rock mean?"
"A little distance from that white Oak?"
"Yes; just at the break of the hill."
"Well, there is a romantic story connected with that pile of rock, which was told me by the old Padre who sometimes passes a week at the Mission."

We were riding side by side through the pleasant valley in the San Antonio District, where the oldest Mission in Monterey county is established. My companion was on a flying tour through the sheep districts, to see what stock he could pick up for a new ranch of his, farther north.

"I will let you have all the facts the Padre gave me as soon as we arrive at the Mission. We shall rest there for a couple of hours, and there may be a small tap of wine left to wash down the dust of this southern road.

"Heaven grant it," said I, as the long adobe church lay but a half a mile before us.

In ten minutes we drew rein before the arched portal of the Mission, dismounted, and, giving our horses in charge to a sleepy Indian, who was puffing a cigarito in the sun, we entered the Mission garden. It was a neglected spot, luxuriant in roses and hollyhocks, between which grew the tall mustard, and the vines were wild and untrimmed. In the centre stood a ruined fabric, that had once served as a sort of summer-house, or lounging place for the Padres to sip their wine in on southern evenings. Here we sat down, and before a bottle of white wine which my friend had foraged from the old Mexican in charge of the Mission, and a chicken pisado fresh from the coals, he told the story of Spanish love and revenge.

"Twenty years ago," he began, "a wealthy and influential Spaniard lived and prospered on the Ohitos ranch, about ten miles to the southward of the Mission. Don Philipo de Aguilar boasted of the pure Castilian blood, and his wife was the proudest lady in the southern country. They were hospitable people, and at the Rodeo or Carzaros fiesta, Don Philipo was the first host to welcome his guests. His daughter, Carlotta, was a beautiful girl, and as proud of her unmixed blood as her old father. Well, as a matter of course, she was a prize worth the getting, and every young, good looking Spaniard in the neighborhood, displayed his riding powers in the field, or tinkled the guitar in the house, to captivate the young Carlotta. She laughed and was kind to all, but never showed a preference.

"The Don, when his daughter was in her nineteenth year, looked himself with a matrimonial eye for the most likely suitor for Carlotta. Don Juan de la Guerra, a widower, some forty years of age, and with many broad leagues at his back, appeared the most likely. So he received an invitation to pass a week at the Ohitos. He came, and saw, but did not conquer; for Carlotta laughed at his antique Castilian manners, ridiculed his pretensions to her hand, and mimicked his singing. Aguilar therefore gave up the idea of choosing himself a son-in-law, and waited patiently until the favored man should appear.

"Anastasia Gomez bore an unenviable reputation in the southern country. His principal business was dealing monte; and though, now and then, when dead broke he took a hand at the rodeo, yet honest labor was something to which he entertained a constitutional aversion. He was handsome, and quite a maid-looking youth, such as none would suspect of being a deadly pistol shot, and a man to come to some way or other connected with every bad scrape in the district. It was whispered that he was associated with a gang of desperadoes—professional horse-thieves, whose lives in a settlement would not be worth a dog's. Still, notwithstanding these rumors, Gomez carried a bold front, and none dared to charge him to his face with any of his misdeeds.

"One August evening, as the Don and his daughter were sitting under the cool piazza of the ranch, a stranger rode up, and hitching his horse to the fence, dismounted. Aguilar invited him to a glass of wine even before the ceremony of an introduction; for where houses are far apart, a strange face is always welcome.

"My name is Gomez," said the stranger, after partaking of the Don's hospitality.

"A good name, senor," said Aguilar, courteously, "though in this part of the country we have one who does it no honor."

"I have heard of him; a hard case, I believe.'

"None worse. I lost a fine stallion some months ago, and I am inclined to credit that scamp with it.'

"And my favorite mare, father,' said Carlotta, 'went a week ago. I suppose we'll give Gomez the credit of that too.'

"The guest, who stated that he had just ridden from Monterey, united with his host in lamenting the existence of those bands of wandering desperadoes who interfere so materially with the prosperity of the country. Of himself, he stated that he was a storekeeper from San Diego, who had been making some purchases in Monterey, and was on his way home.

"The evening passed pleasantly. The Don found a good listener and an agreeable talker in his guest. He was willing to hear all the family traditions, and told some thrilling stories of his adventures in South America and Mexico. Carlotta, too, was pleased with the stranger. He had an excellent voice, and paid the compliments the Spanish woman loves so much in an easy, off-hand way, that contrasted strongly with the clumsy admiration of the late suitor, Don Juan.

"'Could you not remain a week or so with us?' said Aguilar, as he showed his guest to his chamber.

"'Willingly,' replied Gomez; 'I have so arranged my business that I am in no hurry to return to San Diego, and I hope some day to be able to return your hospitality.'

"Gomez seemed an Admirable Crichton in the eyes of Aguilar and his daughter. So affable, so accomplished was he, that the old Don thought if he were only sure of his financial standing he would make an excellent partner for Carlotta. As the time of departure drew near, Aguilar announced to his daughter that he would give a ball, and accordingly invitations were issued to the surrounding rancheros. Gomez did not seem delighted with the intended festivity, and declared that he was a poor dancer, and indeed cared little for amusements of that description.

"Three days before the ball, Carlotta and Gomez walked up and down together in the vineyard adjoining the house.

"'I shall often think of the Ohitos, I assure you,' said he, 'and the very pleasant visit I have had.

"'Nor shall we forget you; and whenever you go to Monterey again, you must come over to the ranch.'

"They sat down in an arbor by the boundary wall, and for some moments both were silent.

"'I have had many ventures in my life,' said Gomez, 'but now shall take a chance greater than all; I love you, Carlotta;' and he looked boldly into the brown eyes that were fixed on the purple grapes that dropped to the ground beside them.

"For a moment it seemed as if she was struggling between pride and love; pride for the bold abrupt wooing, and love for the handsome youth who dared to take her heart by storm. But love conquered, and Gomez had the Don's proud daughter in his arms, blushing and sobbing.

"'Your father will not object, my darling,' he murmured. 'My family is as wealthy, and as proud as his own; but if he does, will you trust all to me?'

"'Everything—everything,' she whispered; and arm in arm they entered the house.

"By the advice of her lover, Carlotta kept their secret from the Don when he returned. And she felt a little uneasy at the concealment, for she argued, 'is it not better that now, before Gomez departs, our minds should be set at rest?' Still she obeyed, and for the first time felt a sense of restraint and restlessness in the presence of Aguilar.

"On the morning of the festival day Gomez did not appear at breakfast, but excused himself, saying that he suffered from a severe headache. Carlotta sent him a fragrant cup of tea, and prepared by her own hands a message that he should take care and get well in time for the ball.

"Dinner came, and he was still too ill to appear; but he sent a little note to Carlotta, stating that it would be impossible for him to be up at the ball, but that he would think of her, and not to make herself too agreeable to the gallants. Carlotta, strange to say, had little sympathy with her mother, who mostly kept in her room as a confirmed invalid; though this evening Madame Aguilar appeared in an antique brocade dress for the ball; and though Carlotta was longing for a confident, still the cold, languid indifference of her mother chilled her, and she kept her own counsel. Soon the guests began to arrive; the men on horseback, the ladies in wagons, and some of the latter riding en pillion. The large hall was lighted up, and two violins and three guitars composed the orchestra.

"Carlotta was the belle of the room, and happy in her newly found love, danced and talked and sang with an esprit that made the hearts of the young Spaniards ache. The Don and his old friend De la Guerra paced the veranda and discoursed of the grand prospects—cattle and grain, and all those things pertaining to their pursuits.

"'You have heard of that desperado, Gomez,' said Don Juan.

"'Not only heard of him, but suffered from his depredations.'

"'Well, he appears to have forsaken the country. The monte houses have not seen him, and it is rumored that he has taken up his quarters in Mexico. I wonder what our friends below will think of this specimen of a California ruffian?'

"'Shoot him, probably, the first time he attempts his old tricks. As you mentioned the name, I remember my guest. I have a Gomez on a visit with me at present—a store-keeper from San Diego, and a most entertaining gentleman.'

"'Is he in the ball-room?'

"'No, he is confined to his chamber by a nervous headache. Excuse me for a minute. I shall ask him if he feels better; or, suppose we smoke a cigarito in his room. I think he is sitting up.'

"Don Aguilar tapped at the door, and, receiving no answer, entered the room, followed by Don Juan. Gomez was asleep—one hand hanging over the bedside, and the other beneath his handsome head. Don Juan gripped his companion's arm and drew him from the bedroom to the piazza.

"'My God!' he whispered, 'do you know who your guest is?'

"'What I told you; but why are you so agitated? What is the matter?'

"'Matter! Why that is Anastasia Gomez himself—the gambler, the murderer, the horse-thief. How could you have been deceived?'

"'You amaze me. I had never seen this man before, and can hardly believe it possible that he is identical with that scoundrel.'

"'In your ball room is Mendez, the brother of a young man who was shot in a saloon by Gomez four weeks ago.'

"'Aye, shot like a dog, because he deserved it!' said a deep voice beside them; and Anastasia Gomez, dressed and armed, stood on the piaza. His eye blazed with excitement, and he actually towered above the frightened old men.

"'Aguilar,' he continued, 'two days ago I received a promise of marriage from your daughter. I did not expect to fool you into a consent, but I expected to bring her with me. Now I go to join the ball.'

"The Don stood motionless from amazement, and when he rushed to the door of the ball room he saw Gomez approaching his daughter, while the startled guests fell back on either side. She was leaning on the arm of young Mendez, who, the moment his eyes fell on Gomez uttered a shout of rage and sprang towards his brother's murderer.

"Gomez drew his revolver and fired one shot at Mendez, and then, as the crowd pressed in on him, he dashed through an open window, hotly pursued by Mendez, who had escaped the ball. The desperado sprang on a Vanquero's horse that stood hitched to the fence, and was off like an arrow in the darkness. A pursuit was at once organized, but when some twenty armed men started, Mendez was nowhere to be seen. A Indian boy said that he saw Mendez mount a few moments after Gomez rode off, and follow him at headlong speed. The next morning, just where that heap of rocks is piled, the body of Mendez was found, a lariat around his neck, and from the appearance of the corpse it seemed that it had been dragged for some distance. The general opinion was that Gomez, finding his pursuer close on his heels, had untied the lariat that hung at the saddle bow, lassoed Mendez, and strangled him."

"'And how about the Don and his daughter?'

"'Old Aguilar was like a raging lion for six months afterwards. Carlotta pretended to laugh at the assertion of the outlaw Gomez, that she had promised to love him, and called him an impudent rascal. But the sequel told a different tale. Gomez nothing was heard for many months. At last it became rumored that Gomez had been seen in the San Antonio District. The old Don swore that if he ever saw the scamp he would shoot him down like a pole-cat.

"'One morning Carlotta Aguilar was missing, and neither father, nor mother, nor kith, nor kin, ever heard of her again.'"

"'Ran off with Gomez, of course,' said I, as the story-teller lighted a fresh cigarito.

"'Such was the general impression; but I have told you all the Padre gave me. So now to horse; the afternoon is cool, and the remainder of our ride will be pleasant."

A RUSSIAN GHOST STORY.

In a certain village—the story runs—there was a girl who hated work but loved gossip. So she never spun herself, but used to invite the other girls to her house, where she feasted them and they spun for her. During one of these spinning feats a dispute arose as to which of the party was the boldest.

"I'm not afraid of anything," said the lazy-bones.

"Well, then," said the spinners, "if you're not afraid, go through the grave-yard into the church, take down the holy picture from the door, and bring it here."

"Very good," said she, "I'll bring it, only each of you must spin me a distaff-full."

Well, she went to the church, took down the picture, and brought it home with her. But then the picture had to be taken back again, and the midnight hour had arrived. Who was to take it?

"Go on spinning, you girls," said lazy bones; "I'll take it back myself. I'm not afraid of anything!"

So she went back to the church and replaced the picture. As she passed through the grave yard, on her return, she saw a corpse in a white shroud, sitting on a tomb. It was a moonlight night, and everything was visible. She went up to the corpse and pulled its shroud off (its hour for stirring hadn't arrived, perhaps). Then she went home, carrying the shroud with her.

After supper, when everybody had gone to bed, all of a sudden the corpse leaped at the window, saying, "Give me my shroud!" Give me my shroud!" The girls were frightened out of their wits. But the lazy bones took the shroud, opened the window, and said:—

"There, take it!"

"No," replied the corpse; "take it to the place you took it from."

Just then a cock crowed, and the corpse vanished.

Next night, at the same hour, after all the spinners had gone to their own homes, the corpse came again, tapped at the window, and cried:—

"Give me my shroud!"

Well, the girl's father and mother opened the window, and offered the corpse its shroud, but it cried:—

"No; let her carry it back to the place she took it from."

Just then the cocks began to crow—the corpse disappeared. Well, next day they sent for the priest, and told him the whole story, and implored him to help them. The priest reflected awhile, then told the girl to come to mass next day. The service began. Numbers of people came to see it. But just as they were going to sing the "Cherubine Song" a terrible whirlwind arose, and it caught up that girl in the air, and then flung her down on the ground, when straightway the girl disappeared from sight; nothing was ever found of her except her back hair.

"COME LOVE, COME," AND SHE COMED ALL OF A HEAP.—A Wisconsin young man sang beneath the window of his lady love, "Come love, come." The young lady took him at his word by tumbling bodily upon him from the second story window, out of which she had leaned too far to see who was serenading her. There was a cry of "Ouch!" a flutter of white linen, and all was still.

A RAT TRAP.—A Quaker, who had been troubled with rats, informs a friend that he greased a 30-foot board, filled it full of fish-hooks, set it up at an angle of 45 degrees, and put an old cheese at the top. The rats went up, slid back, and he caught thirty of them the first night.

"ANYTHING TO BEAT GRANT."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.
BY JOSEPH J. GRANT.

I'd tolerate a night of Greeley's rant,
I'd read a page of William Beecher's cant,
I'd leap into Niagara's boiling chasm,
I'd meekly suffer small pox, gout or spasm,
I'd mount Vesuvius' hell prospective height,
Into its turmoil take my headlong flight,
I'd swim the quick St. Lawrence through the ice,
I'd feast on cats, on gnats, on rats, on mice,
I'd lasso my nose and bathe the wound in lye,
I'd break the blessed matrimonial tie,
I'd burn a ship, I'd send a train to ruin,
I'd kill a Jap, I'd fight a monster brute,
I'd lie, I'd steal, I'd swindle Uncle Sam,
I'd swear a great, ferocious sounding d——n,
I'd travel nude, I'd wear my ears askant,
I'd shoot a poet—"Anything to beat Grant!"

A MUSICAL ROMANCE.

COMPILED FROM SOME OF THE SONGS OF J. R. THOMAS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

"Years Ago," "On The Banks of the Genesee," I met "Bonny Eloise," the "Girl of the Laughing Eye." "We Two" were "Waiting in the Twilight," amid "Beautiful Flowers." "One By One" the "Stars of the Summer Night" came out, and the "Queen of the Night" smiled down on the "Grave of Kitty Clyde," while "Softly O'er The Rippling Waters" came "Angel Voices." Softly raising "Those Bright Blue Eyes," my companion murmured, "We Are Going to Leave Thee, Willie Rose," said I, "Bright Days are Coming, Love," and "I have so much to Tell," I have been "Far Away" to "My Dear, My Native Home," and at "The Old Farm House" been talking over "Old Friends and Old Times" with the "Loving Hearts at Home," who are "Far Away But Not Forgotten." "Oh Don't You Remember The Time" when "We were Boys and Girls Together" "By The Meadow Brook?"

She turned away, saying, "Love's Early Dream" is "Blighted;" "I'll Dream of Thee No More"—thou art "Falsehearted." "It Seems But the other Day," when at "The Fields of Home," on the "Beautiful Highlands," "Mother Kissed Me in My Dreams," "Must I Then Leave Thee Ellen L. Do not say "Good Bye!" I know I am "Too Good for Nothing," but I want "Some One to Love," to be "The Star of My Home." "I've Loved Thee Long," oh "Bloom In My Heart, Lovely Rose"—I am "Thine, and Only Thine."

"Be Quiet, Do, or I'll Call Mother," said Bonny Eloise. You "Keep the Ball a Rollin'" playing "Croquet" with "Dark Eyed Norina," "Maudie Moore" and "The Irishman" with his "Box of Shamrocks" "All in the Merry May."

"Oh, Gently Breathe," who told you? said I.

"A Little Bird Told Me So," "Down in the Glade," said she.

Oh! for "One Cheering Word"—"Forget if You Can, but Forgive;" but "Do Not Quite Forget" "The Little Church 'round the Corner" and taking from my coat "A Withered Rose," I said, my "Blue Eyed Bell" here is the "Sweetest of Flowers."

No, said she, "'Tis But a Little Faded Flower," give me "A Sprav o' Mignonette."

Oh, give me "Welcome Home," said I.

Yes, "One Hundred Thousand Welcomes;" we cannot stay "Apart." "Be Near to Me," for "Love is at the Helm."

Said I, "Breathe it Softly to the Loved Ones"—"I'll Meet Thee at the Gate," on "The Sunny Side the Way."

Then "Linger Not, Darling," "All's for the Best;" forget "The Thoughtless Vow," and think of our "Union," for I am "Coming Again," so "Keep up Your Heart Still," for "The Bird Will Come Again" with "The Leaves that Fall in Spring;" then "Over the Waters I'll Wander with Thee" to my "Cottage by the Sea," on "The Beautiful Isle of the Sea," and we'll "Merrily Row" "When the Light Waves Rippling Play." So "Good Night, and Happy Dreams," "Sweet Be Thy Repose." "God Bless You," and may your "Watchword" be "Do Right and Fear Not."

THE COLISEUM AT ROME.

The Emperor Vespasian, after his return from the Jewish war in the year 72 of the Christian era, caused this wonderful amphitheatre to be built in that part of ancient Rome where were the ponds and gardens of Nero. It was completed in four years, and his son Titus dedicated it by the slaughter of five thousand wild beasts in the arena.

Adrian caused the colossal statue of Nero to be removed from the vestibule of his own palace, and placed in this amphitheatre, where it was worshiped as Apollo.

The Coliseum derives its name from its colossal dimensions, being about 1,700 English feet in circumference. The form is oval. It was built of immense blocks of Travertine stone, and consists of four stories. The first story is formed with Doric columns, the second with Ionic, the third and fourth with Corinthian. The entrances were eighty in number, seventy-six being for the people, two for the gladiators, and two for the emperor and his suit. Within the walls were twenty stair-cases leading to seats appropriated to the different classes of the people. The seats are said to have held eighty-seven thousand spectators, and the portico or gallery above them twenty thousand. There was an awning which covered the entire edifice in case of rain or intense heat. In the wall of the uppermost story are open holes supposed to have contained the rings for fastening the cords of this awning.

Chateaubriand in his Martyrs says:—"There were rails of gold before the seat of the Roman Senators to guard them from the attacks of the wild beasts. The air was refreshed by means of machines ingeniously contrived to throw up wine and saffron water, which again descended in an odoriferous dew. Three thousand bronzed statues, fine pictures, columns of jasper and porphyry, crystal balustrades, vases of precious workmanship, decorated this scene of savage cruelty."

A hippopotamus and some crocodiles swam in an artificial canal which surrounded the arena. Five hundred lions, forty elephants, tigers, panthers, bulls and bears, kept for the inhuman purposes of tearing human beings to afford amusement to their savage species, were heard roaring in the caverns of the amphitheatre.

Such were the sports of the Romans when their empire was in the plenitude of its power.

A GROTESQUELY HORRIBLE STORY.

A French paper gives the following grotesquely horrible story:—"Some days ago a wedding was celebrated at A——, merchant's clerk named Marius Cramoin married a young girl of eighteen, named Anna Dumay, who was an orphan from childhood, and had been educated by an old priest dead six months ago. Though she was very attractive and had a dowry of fifty thousand francs—a respectable sum for a simple clerk—Crampin was far from jubilant when he left the church. Some of his friends, in fact, on hearing of his marriage, had sneered at the matter in rather a singular manner, without offering any explanations and had declined to be present at the wedding. Besides, when the sacrifice was consummated, Crampin felt tormented by suspicions which before marriage he repelled with contempt. In order to dispel them he drank deep, and towards midnight he was pretty mellow. At the time of retiring to rest, the bride went first and extinguished the taper. Five minutes after Crampin arrived. 'Hallo!' he said, stumbling, 'my wife pretends to be asleep. We must light the candle again.' But just as he was about to strike a light with a match, he heard a rustling of curtains and a man appeared—a man of great height, wrapped in a white shroud that was spotted over with blood, and without a head. He carried a red lantern. Crampin uttered a cry of exclamation, the match fell from his hand, and the two remained spell bound by terror at the frightful spectacle before their eyes, for from the corners of the room emerged three more headless persons, all clothed in white but blood bespattered winding sheets, each with a red lantern in the one hand and his head in the other. They stationed themselves in front of the fireplace, and saluted the young people in a ceremonious manner. Then, all three in a line, they spoke. Crampin, in his terror, knew not whether the voice issued from the body or from the head. 'Good day to you, Citizen Crampin,' said one of the headless beings. 'I am Joseph Grigois, a client of thy wife's great great grandfather.' 'Give me thy hand, Crampin,' said the other, sneeringly. 'Madame knows me too. I lost my head in 1836 at the hands of the executioner.' By this time Crampin was down on his knees, and his bride was moaning in a state of distraction from fear. But they were alone in the house, which was situated at the gates of the town, and nobody came near them. The third phantom then advanced. 'Little one,' he said, in an amiable tone, 'thou can't boast of having had a grandfather who did his work quietly. I was guillotined through his hands.' 'Good God!' groaned Crampin in despair, 'the man without a head speaks through his nose.' 'Step out children,' called the fourth spectre, 'the nuptial ball is about to begin. Forward both!' And the four guillotined persons, taking their places, broke into a dance, a supernatural Can-can that froze the blood in the veins of the young couple. They leaped up and down, backwards and forwards, spread wide their winding sheets like great white wings, and played like jugglers with their heads. It was frightful, and all the more when suddenly they broke out in chorus, and sang some staves of a horribly grotesque song. Then all at once, opening the door, they disappeared in the dark lobby, after having deposited the four heads on the knees of the bride. 'Merciful heavens!' gasped out the latter when under the clients of my family!' 'What family, madame?' yelled Crampin, horrified in the midst of his terror by the exclamation. 'Forgive me,' supplicated the bride, throwing herself on her knees before him. 'Grandpapa was an executioner.' The wretched Crampin sprang to his feet and then fell senseless. As soon as he returned to himself, without taking time to put his trunk, he precipitately left the town, and has not been again seen. The investigations of the police into this mysterious affair resulted in the discovery that the four guillotined persons were none other than the friends of Crampin, who had learned, one knows not how, of the unfortunate connections of the bride. Their four heads were four melons."

THE ODDITIES OF MUSICIANS.

Lully labored like a feeble amateur. He sat down at the piano with his snuff box and sang and played till, by means of trying here and there, up and down, he fancied he had discovered the most suitable melody. This discovery he then communicated to some subordinate, who wrote down the direction, and that was the end of it. Sarti required a large dark room, even at night; but feebly lit up; his musical ideas came to him only in the stillness of the night. Of Spontini, too, we somewhere read that he never was able to compose only in the dark. Olimarosa wanted noise about him; he liked best to work in merry company. Salieri, to excite his fancy, strolled about in the most frequented streets, eating bon bons, with lead pencil and paper in his hand, to be ready when the occasion offered. Paer composed, chatted, scolded, dictated, all in one. Sacchini felt himself incapable of putting a melody unless he was with his lady love and had his little kittens about him. Alex. Gesca, if one may lend faith to eye witnesses, resorted to similar means—the bottle served him instead of a lady-love, and for kittens he tried to procure a little dog! Pisiello remained in bed when he intended composing—a cheap, practical means, as trustworthy contemporaries have assured us; it saves fuel, clothing, &c. Zingarelli, before sitting down at the piano to compose, read a few pages of a Latin poet; then, however, he worked so easily that he was able to write in four hours—four hours, I say—a whole act of "Romeo and Juliet!" When Father Haydn couldn't get along he would take his rosary and say a few aves, and generally inspiration returned. In another place we read—probably of his early years—Haydn sat quietly down in a chair, but he must have upon his finger the ring that Frederick the Great had once given him. In London, however, this expedient seemed to have proved unavailing, for we have a report that once the master had no inspiration left at all; for two weeks he vainly tortured himself to get an appropriate continuation of the first eight bars of an andante. It is well known that it had been thought some connection existed between Mozart's fondness of billiards and ten-pins and his musical disposition. Beethoven went out into the open air, into the magnificence and solitude of nature. Mehul was a lover of flowers and liked to sojourn in pretty gardens. Mendelssohn, it is said, always had bouquets at his desk. Haley required the sound of boiling water to become disposed." Auber, a good rider, mounted his horse in order to gain the romantic country, where the artist finds everything he needs; formerly, perhaps in after years, when the celebrated composer was an old, very old gentleman, he probably composed his operas on foot. Francois Huntin felt most inspired for composition in autumn. He walked up and down the room, catching flies—no very difficult task at that season of the year—and thus were produced more than two hundred compositions, the greater part of which might at one time be found on every piano—long enough ago, it is true.—Art Journal.

THE BELLS.

SYNOPSIS OF ANOTHER SENSATION DRAMA.

WRITTEN TO ORDER EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

SCENE ONE.—Reception room in the mansion of the rich millionaire, Fortunio De Briggs. His daughter, Evangeline—that lady discovered reclining in a Boston rocker. She comes down and sings the affecting ballard, "My Daddy Sold Charcoal," in Byelaian.

EVAN.—Heigho!

(Throws aside a cheap novel she has been reading.)

How weary, flat, stale and unprofitable
Appears the world to me. For something else
Than fashionable frauds my bosom yearns.
Would I might find my soul's affinity!
Not among garish crowds, not where the hum
Of silly voices mingles with the scent
Of artificial flowers, but where the coat
Of simple feelse conceals the honest heart.
Not for a didapper, but for a man I pine,
And every pulse that in my bosom beats
In thrilling tones cries out:—"O for a man!"
Or man-sion in the skies, I care not which.

[Enter MR. TUFTUS LUSHINGTON.]

LUSH.—Behold him here!
EVAN.—Treat me, you are not sich!
LUSH.—For want of better, surely I might do.
EVAN.—Hark thee! 'tis on thy wealth that thou reliest.
And, Tufty, I have all I want of that,
Aye, e'n to surfeit. Go, dispense thy cash,
And when thou hast got rid of all, aye, all,
E'en to the derrier silver, come to me.
LUSH.—You'll have me then? Know, then, that I am not
The wealthy man I seemed. I have, by dint
Of wine and horses, rid myself of all
I e'er laid claim to.
EVAN.—In plain terms, you're a bilk,
And do not shame to say so. Come, that's manly,
And here's my hand accordin'.
LUSH.—Then allow me
Onto that finger this bright ring to place.
(Puts betrothal ring on finger—they embrace and he exits.)
EVAN.—Jehu, what ho!
My carriage hither bring,
I'd take the air awhile, and would that I
Might take an hair along! Heigho! allonge.
And, Fido, you shall bear me company.

[Takes upher lap dog and enters carriage.]

SCENE TWOTH.—The gay boulevard. Miss Briggs and Fido riding out in the family carriage for an airing.

A ragman comes along wheeling his cart before him and jangling his bells. It is Jack Ragge.

JACK.—Rags, rags, old rags I cry; who wants to sell?
EVAN.—That form! those voice! The idol of me dreams.

[Faints.]

The horses take fright, tumble the coachman off and dash down the boulevard.

JACK.—Hoy! there's a pooty being in distress.
I never did see so much loveliness.
By gumps! I'll save this h'angel, or I'll die.

[Rushes after carriage, seizes the reins, climbs in and fans her once more into life. Crowd gather round and sing a chorus as he drives her off to her papa's. Tableo.]

SCENE THREE.—The drawing room. Evangeline reading a novuel as usual.

EVAN.—Heigho! I fear me that I now regret
The promise that I made, for Tufty, you
Are not my soul's affinity, after all.

[Jangling of bells under window—the voice of Jack Ragge is heard, crying "Rags, old rags," etc.]

EVAN.—That voice! 'Tis it again, my bosom's lord!

[Rushes precipitately to basement door, where, meeting Jack, she falls swooning in his arms.]

JACK.—My bully gal, look up. I'm him! I'm him!
EVAN.—O, ever thus let me on thee repose.
JACK.—And wiltest thou take me, spite of these old clothes?
EVAN.—I will! To-morrow morn I was to wed,
But ere at yonder altar I pronounce
The words that make me twain, be thou on hand
With chosen followers to tear me thence.
JACK.—Since that's your talk, consider it as done.
Sure, never was a bride so squarely won.

[Kisses and hugs her and exit, dancing and singing "Pol-lol-lol."]

SCENE FOURTH.—The altar of St. Borrono-mo's. The marriage procession enters and approaches the altar to music by Strauss. The ceremony is about to come off between Evangeline and Lushington, as per programme, when a disturbance is heard without, and Jack Ragge rushes in with a party of friends armed to the teeth, from Mackerelville.

JACK.—Back, holy man! This marriage I denounce.
As for the lady, she has plight to me
And in a sad plight I'll put any he
That intercepts me. E'en at the altar's foot
I claim me promist be-ride!

[Music.—Jack seizes the maiden, whom swoons again and is borne off amid a running fight.]

SCENE LAST.—The stronghold of Jack Ragge at Mackerelville—The police, headed by Papa Briggs, have invested and captured it. Jack Ragge appears with Evangeline.

JACK.—Back! myrmidons of the law! This is my wife,
By her own choice, and as for me, know all,
I am no vile piebelan, but an earl, and
The Earl of Dinkunsaswk! Nay, hear more—
The rival whom you've had has eight wives living,
And cannot press his claim.
EVAN.—Papa, your blessing!
OLD BRIGGS.—Thou hastest it, my child.

CHORUS AND CURTAIN.

THE POWER OF MUSIC.

Alessandro Stradella flourished about the middle of the seventeenth century. He was a fine singer, and an excellent performer on the harp, an instrument in which he took much delight. For some years he held the situation of composer to the Opera at Venice, under an appointment from the magistrates of that republic.

He was likewise a teacher of music there, and, amongst others, of whose education he had the superintendence, was a young lady of rank, named Hortensia. His frequent access to the lady produced a mutual affection, and they agreed to elope together. They embarked for Rome on a fine night, and, aided by a favorable wind, effected their escape.

On discovering the lady's flight, her father had recourse to the usual methods of the country in obtaining satisfaction for real or supposed injuries. He dispatched two assassins, with directions to murder both Stradella and the lady, wherever they should be found, giving them a sum of money in the hand, and making them a promise of a larger sum if they succeeded in the attempt. Having arrived at Naples, they were informed that those of whom they were in pursuit were at Rome, where the lady passed as Stradella's wife. On this intelligence they wrote to their employer, requesting letters of recommendation to the Venetian ambassador at Rome, in order to secure an asylum to which they could fly as soon as the deed was perpetrated.

Having received these letters, they made the best of their way to Rome. At their arrival they were informed that on the evening of the succeeding day Stradella was to give an oratorio in the church of San Giovanni Laterano. They attended the performance, determined to follow them out of the church, and, seizing a convenient opportunity, to make the fatal blow. The music soon afterwards commenced; but so exquisitely pathetic was it in some parts, that, long before it was concluded, the suggestions of humanity had begun to operate upon them. They were seized with remorse, and reflected with horror upon the thought of depriving a man of life who could give to his auditors so much delight as they had felt. In short, they entirely desisted from their purpose, and determined, instead of taking away his life, to exert all their efforts to preserve it. They awaited his coming out of the church, and, after first thanking him for the pleasure they had received in hearing his music, informed him of the bloody errand on which they had been sent; expatiating on the irresistible charms which of savages had made them men and had rendered it impossible for them to effect their sanguinary purpose. They concluded, by earnestly advising that he and the lady should depart immediately from Rome, promising that they would forego the remainder of the reward, and would deceive their employer, by making him believe they had quitted that city on the morning of their arrival.

TATERSALL AND MATHEWS.—Mr. Tatersall and Charles Mathews, the elder, were very intimate, and the great comedian was frequently in the habit of accompanying his friend to Newmarket, where, on one occasion, Mathews indulged in his well known taste of mimicry, at the expense of Mr. Tatersall, during a sale of blood stock conducted by the latter. "The first lot, gentlemen," said Mr. Tatersall, "is a bay filly by Smolensko," &c.—"The first lot, gentlemen," echoed Mr. Mathews, in precisely the same tone of voice, "is a bay filly by Smolensko." The auctioneer looked somewhat annoyed but proceeded:—"What shall we say to begin with?"—"What shall we say to begin with?" replied the echo. Still endeavoring to conceal his vexation, Mr. Tatersall inquiringly called out:—"One hundred guineas?"—"One hundred guineas?" echoed Mathews.—"Thank you, sir," cried Mr. Tatersall, bringing down the hammer with a bang; "the filly is yours." Mathews was considerably taken aback by this sudden acquisition of "blood stock" and the company enjoyed the joke immensely.

SIGN LANGUAGE.—A San Francisco paper is put out of benevolence by a little fan at its expense, and says:—"We regard the atrocious correspondent as an infernal fiend, a false-tongued midnight monster, a red-handed assassin, a thief, a he school-marm, a fraud, a ghost, and an unpleasant person." We esteem him a pea-green demon of the steaming pit, with a cotton-wood tail, eyes in his sides, and a cork nest studded with hot door-knobs! If there is anything worse than this, we think him that."

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT FARMING.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY "DOBBS."

I'm an agricultural cuss, you must know,
That is, I've a penchant that way,
I've a farm in the country, where often I go,
Tho' I know very well it don't pay.
But then it's impos

NOTICE.

☞ Correspondents, advertisers, and all others writing in relation to matters connected with this or any other department of the CLIPPER, are respectfully requested to address their favors to the editor and proprietor, and thereby avoid omissions, mistakes and confusion, which are likely to occur when such communications are addressed to our assistants.

NOTICE.

Advertisers must hand in their favors before 6 o'clock on Monday evening, in order to have them appear in that week's issue.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We never answer questions by mail. All addressed to us seeking information will be answered through this column only.

CHAS. J. BYRNES.—The letter you write about was mailed on Aug. 26th, and all letters are mailed promptly upon the receipt of stamped envelopes for their enclosure. There were only six letters advertised for you during the past year, two of which you got personally and signed for, therefore you are mistaken in stating that six had miscarried, as only four were mailed to you.

E. R., Zanesville, O.—1. The lines will appear. 2. If your opponent's two misses were the first two shots in commencing the game there was no forfeit; but if afterwards, then you could score the two points therefor. 3. The head of the table is the end at which the light red ball is spotted. 4. Don't understand this question.

D. W. Boston, Mass.—The salary of the gymnasts doing double trapeze and brother act depends entirely upon their skill and reputation. Beginners could not command any salary. Those with public reputation get from $40 to $150 per week, double, and half that singly. We have so frequently answered this question that we thought that yours was among the number.

H. J. M., Elmira, N. Y.—Messrs. Castle and Campbell were members of the Parepa Rosa opera troupe during the season of 1869-70; of the Grand English Opera Combination, composed of members of the late Caroline Richings troupe and the Parepa-Rosa troupe, during the season of 1870-71, and of the Parepa-Rosa troupe, during the season of 1871-2.

FRANK GRAY, Thorndale.—"In the 8th innings of a game the score stood 28 to 28, and the Quicksteps got 7 runs and one out, and it was getting so dark that they had to stop on odd innings. The Eureka claims the game from the 5th and 7th innings, in which they were ahead. How is it?".....The game was a draw, 28 to 28.

W. A. D., Boston.—"In playing for the junior championship of Massachusetts, the Excelsior Club, of Boston, stands as follows:—(including forfeited games). Won, 11; lost, 3. The Harvards, of North Bridgewater, won, 11; lost, 2. Excluding forfeited games, they stand:—Excelsior, won, 9; lost, 3. Howard, won, 7; lost, 3. Which has the best record?".....The club winning the most games.

AMBITIOUS, Chicago, Ill.—The author of a story can copyright it and add to the certificate of copyright the words, "All rights reserved," which will effectually bar any person from dramatizing it. If such words are not added any person can dramatize it.

GYMNAST, Oneida, N. Y.—1. Your experience is what every novice has to undergo until his reputation is made. 2. Put your business in the hands of one of the dramatic agents who advertise in the CLIPPER. 3. Harry Hicken has not fought any one during the past three or four years.

H. H. B., Oswego, N. Y.—1. You may possibly affect an engagement either by advertising in the CLIPPER or through an agent, although managers fight shy of novices. 2. We know nothing of that firm as they are utterly worthless. 3. No fee is charged until an engagement is effected.

CAPITOL HILL, D. C.—In the race between Boston and Fashion Course, Long Island, May 15, 1842, the former was ridden by (Nat) Jones, and the latter by Sam Purdy; the latter, 5 years old, ridden by Joe Laird, 111lbs.

MISS ROSE, Milwaukee, Wis.—1. We cannot give you the names of the bass and snare drummers of the Ethiopian Minstrel troupe. 2. If you mean Lester, the contortionist, he is alive. 3. We never answer such questions.

FAT JACK, Boston, Mass.—Delaware is one of the middle states. 2. A. T. & S. F. R. R. Mass.—As there was nothing said about railroad or highway in the bet, they have nothing to do with it, and if the exact distance from Worcester to Fitchburg is not over thirty miles, then B won.

J. H., Baltimore, Md.—The area of Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, Pa., is 2,991 acres, and that of Phœnix Park, Dublin, Ireland, 1,752 acres. The area of London, Eng., and suburbs in 1860 was 121 square miles. The area of Philadelphia we will endeavor to give you in our next, as there have been some additions of late.

READER, Buffalo, N. Y.—1. Dexter never trotted with a running mate. 2. In trotting with a running mate the latter is hitched alongside the former, and is under no restraint as to the weight of the vehicle. 3. The fastest heat in the race between Ethan Allen, with running mate, and Dexter, was 2:13½.

WEBSAWKEE.—The best hand at cribbage consists of three jacks and a five, with a flush turned up of the same suit as the five. It counts twenty-nine, viz, sixteen by fifteens, twelve for double-pair-royal, and one for his "knob."

BRONIDE POTASSIA, Cincinnati.—1. The ace, in poker, counts both high and low. 2. The ace, deuce, tray, four and five, and ace, king, queen, jack and ten. 2. A royal flush is ace, king, queen, jack and ten of the same suit.

C. F. B., Charlestown, Mass.—1. Five Points is on the left hand side of Chatham street, going towards the Bowery. 2. There is no Chatham row in the directory. 3. Sweeney's hotel is on the corner of Chatham and Duane streets.

F. & M. Boston, Mass.—The Era is generally considered the leading theatrical paper in England. You can get a list and any papers you want through Wilmer and Rogers, 49 Nassau street, N. Y.

O. H., Lamp Point, Ill.—If A croquets B he should then croquet him and afterwards strike his own ball through the hoop. If by misplay he fails to get his ball clear through the hoop he must wait for his next turn, and then send it through.

MISS M., New England Village, Conn.—We regret to say that we cannot insert the advertisement. 1. Not to our knowledge. 2. Neither of the ladies named are married, we believe. 3. Send address, so that the money can be returned.

STAG BOAT.—"A and B" are playing casino. There is a tray and a deuce on the table. A puts an ace on them and calls them trays. Now B contends that he can build on them and take them with a seven and up to ace. Can he? B cannot do so.

J. C. M., Shelburne Falls, Mass.—Write to D. Longstreet, secretary of the National Trotting Association, Providence, R. I., stating full particulars, and giving the cause of the postponement of K., on the 13th, and he will advise you.

J. S., San Francisco.—To train a greyhound, you must follow the system laid down in "Training Dogs," in "Rural Sports." You can obtain the book through Ed. James, 88 Centre Street, New York. Price, $4.50.

SET SCRAPPER.—"A striker strikes three times, the ball passes the catcher and the striker gets first base. Does it count as a passed ball, there being no one on the bases?".....It is a passed ball, as a runner makes a base on the error.

E. P., Bennington, Vt.—Mace never staked two to one in any of his battles. His first fight with Goss, which he won in an hour and fifty-five and a half minutes, was for £1,000, Mace staking £600 against £400.

J. H. B., Toledo, O.—It is against our rules to issue a new card until the old one is returned, and you infringed those rules by using a white card with the words "correspondent of the New YORK CLIPPER" during the past season.

BILLIARDS.—Cyrille Dion and Jim Flynn are about on a par as pin poolists. The twain have never played a four ball game publicly.

JIMMY KENNEY.—The player on the left of the dealer has the first say; if all pass, then the dealer takes it up, if his hand warrants it.

A. H. B.—If you will apply to T. C. Faulkner, at the counting room in this office, and advertise, you will obtain information concerning such societies.

J. W., Brockville, Ont.—If you can make a comfortable living at any of the trades you know of you would be foolish to speculate upon the stage, as you would find it very difficult to get an opening.

WILLIAM, Philadelphia, Pa.—The Lydia Thompson troupe will perform in your city, and we shall shortly announce theatre and date.

A. F., Saratoga, N. Y.—1. You would have to pay a license for a side show at state fairs. 2. The price of a license varies in every town, so it would be impossible to state what it would be.

CARD PLAYER.—A's trick, having played a five, and B a ten as last card, he (B) was entitled to three points, viz., two for "fifteen" and one for "last card."

C. A. A., Brooklyn.—The William Shakespeare died on the anniversary of his birth, Tuesday, April 23d, 1616, having exactly completed his 52d year.

J. F., Brooklyn, L. I.—1. The instrument is called a mouth harp, harmonicon, or jew's harp. 2. We believe Miss Fanny Herring has never acted Mazeppa.

A. S., Houston, Texas.—A person can learn clog dancing from printed instructions, and such can be had of Ed. James, who advertises in this issue.

H. W. P., Chicago.—You lose your bet. The fastest time in running is 1:43¾, made by Alarm. Gladiateur never ran a mile inside of 1:43½.

J. G. R., Petrolia, Ont.—Goldsmith Maid's fastest time at Milwaukee was 2:17. Her fastest time, 2:16¾, was made at Boston, Mass.

H. A., Harvard, Ill.—The fastest double team time for one mile is 2:27¾, made by Jessie Wales and Darkness at Narragansett Park, R. I., October 8th, 1870.

G. H. P., New York.—No. 1. No record. 2. Send $2.50 to Ed. James, 88 Centre street, and he will forward you the rules and records of the prize ring. 3. We cannot supply you.

E. M. S., Buffalo.—Dexter never trotted with a running mate in any of his races. His fastest time was made in harness; therefore, B wins.

CLOSE OBSERVER.—The Mutual game—19 to 4—was an exhibition game. The Eckford score was not in when the record was published.

C. E. WELFORD.—1. A pitcher can deliver the ball to the bat with either hand. 2. A left-handed pitcher cannot be ruled out for using his right hand more than once.

H. C. F.—1. Have there not been some changes since the house was first opened? 2. The poem is not equal to your previous efforts. A copy of the old bill received, and will be published.

J. W. C., Evansville.—In saying bet that a certain horse would be second, and he comes in first, wins his bet, as the meaning of it was, that the horse would be second or better.

LOUISIANA, Opelousas, La.—Fastest mile ever made in trotting was 2:16¾, by Goldsmith Maid. 2. At Mystic Park, Boston, June 19th, 1872.

A AND B., Charleston.—The meaning of A's bet was that C weighed 175 lbs., or better, and as he actually weighed 177 lbs., he wins.

L. C., Charleston, Mass.—B cannot claim another cut for a fresh deal, after allowing A to deal and turn up the trump card. He should keep a sharper look out for his own interests.

C. P. FLENSETT.—As your card is in reference to an advertisement, it will have to be given in the same department, if you wish it.

T. R. RAMOS.—Messrs. Harper & Brothers are now publishing some of his writings, and they can probably give you the information.

J. M., Mahanoy City, Pa.—Mace and Coburn fought a draw near Bay St. Louis, Miss., on Nov. 30th, 1871, twelve rounds being contested in 3 hours and 38 minutes.

CORA, Scranton, Pa.—Miss Rosman was born at West Troy, N. Y. Her resided for some time at Benicia, Cal., from whence he derived the name of "Benicia Boy."

IDIOTEX.—The best recorded time for running 100 yards in this country is 9¾ seconds. No record of time made at the other distances you mention in America.

CONSTANT READER, Pittsburgh.—The fastest recorded railroad time is as follows:—In America, 14 miles in eleven minutes; in England, 18 miles in 18 minutes.

TIME AND MONEY, Poughkeepsie.—The longest standing jump on record is 13 feet 5¾ inches, made by Ed. Searles, the champion.

SCARLES, Quincy, Ill.—In case anything transpires, we shall be pleased to have you send such information as you may be in possession of.

PHILADELPHIA.—1. Heenan has fought three prize battles—with Morrissey, Sayers and King. 2. He was not, the battle being declared a draw. 3. He never broke his arm.

J. H. P., Boston.—The theatre formerly occupied the ground whereon the CLIPPER building now stands. 2. We cannot say, nothing being definite.

DAN AND EDDIE.—We were not aware that you had severed your connection with that person; it would, no doubt, be to your advantage, as well to drop his name also.

ALBERT STARBIRD.—The lady has retired from the stage, having been married and settled in Boston.

T. STARLETON.—A deposit should have accompanied your offer as an earnest of business.

G. B. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.—As you mutually agreed that the lowest forty-yard dash make the final, the toss of coins won.

NIG, Jersey City.—They each excel in certain points, and we cannot undertake to decide the question of superiority.

TIMOTHY, Philadelphia.—It reached us too late for last week's issue, and we have not space this week to insert it.

AN ACTOR, Providence, R. I.—The better way would be to purchase wardrobe as you require it.

A. C., Baltimore.—1. The fastest time made by Goldsmith Maid was 2:16¾, made against Lucy at Boston. 2. No record.

MOSS, Chicago.—The bet commences from the time the forfeit was put up, but either party can pay forfeit of the $10 down.

P. H.—William having been one of the winners, (both he and James guessing the number marked), wins the $20.

J. C., Lanse, Mich.—The ace is low in cutting in the majority of games, all fours and euchre being among the exceptions.

C. H. W., Louisville.—A man betting on a sure thing can win, provided no fraud is used.

L. W. T. Jr., Hannibal, Mo.—Send 50 cents, and the rules will be forwarded you.

RUNNER, Hillsdale.—Dexter's fastest time, 2:17¼, was made in harness, and not under saddle.

OLD READER.—If the ball be held but a second, it must be counted a catch. The decision was wrong.

W. A. Albany.—The Cincinnati club did not lose a game in 1869. A loser.

J. F., Tylersburg, Pa.—The longest standing jump on record is 13 feet 5¾ inches, by Ed. Searles.

LOUIS, New Orleans, La.—The Marquis of Bute is an English nobleman, with estates in Scotland and South Wales.

A READER, Marlboro.—The author of "Home, Sweet Home," was a native of Long Island, New York.

W. H. FRILLERS.—We have them, but have not yet found room for them.

TIMOTHY, Philad'a.—Old bill received; will be used soon and returned, as per request.

H. M., Pittsburgh, Pa.—The fare now from City Hall, N. Y., to Harlem bridge, on the 3d Avenue route, is only six cents.

HARRY, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The visiting company should follow after the local fire company in the parade.

W. O. W., Scranton, Pa.—Write to the street department, 237 Broadway.

J. H., Elmira, N. Y.—You were mistaken about it being last winter (1871). See answer to H. J. M., of your town.

THOS. HOGAN.—Mazeppa Jessup was introduced on the 31st of May, 1866.

HOWARD HOUSE, Washington, D. C.—See account of the fight in this issue.

R. Y. S., Melmore, O.—The New York Times has the largest daily circulation, and the Tribune (the largest weekly.

OLD READER, Sedalia, Mo.—Send to Ed. James, 88 Centre street, New York, and he will express you the book. Price, $5.

MATTHEWS, Chicago.—Caller Ou won thirty-four Queen's Plates.

W. A. M., Galion.—If the bird is missed, it is scored against the shooter.

J. M. S.—Ace is low in cutting, except at euchre, when it is the highest card except the Jack.

R. Y.—The fastest trotting time on record, one mile, is 2:16¾, made by Goldsmith Maid.

HIGHLAND PARK.—The Jack is scored, notwithstanding it is of the suit run.

W. H. S., Augusta, Ga.—At casino, no one point has precedence over another in case of a tie, as at a seven up.

S. W. D., Chicago.—Judge Curtis was the first horse that ran a mile in 1:43¾, with full weight up, at Saratoga, July 18th, 1871.

W. H. P.—It is skunked, not having made a point before A went out.

MILFORD.—We have always decided that at all fours high deals. In case of a dispute the custom of the house governs.

TROJAN.—As Horace Greeley is the nominee of both the Liberal Republican and Democratic parties, the bet is drawn.

SWEET GUM.—The Reds of 1869 were D. Allison, Brainard, Gould, Sweasy, Waterman, G. Wright, Leonard, H. Wright and McVey.

YOUNG AMERICA, Philadelphia.—We don't know the songs. Look over the street ballads.

FIVE MILE SCULL.—The best five-mile time on record in single sculls is 36:10, made by Josh Ward.

A. W. B., Boston.—He may be interested in one or more on that avenue, but we do not know that he is.

P. M., Charlestown, Mass.—Neither of the men whom Dan Donnelly fought was ever champion of England.

HORACE GARDNEY, Brooklyn.—Billy Edwards is the superior of the man you mention.

E. S. S., Owensboro, Ky.—The letter was taken out of this office by the gentleman himself. We do not know his address.

JOHN MAHR, Fort Henry.—The stakeholder has no power to appoint a referee.

DOOLEY, Brooklyn.—T. E. is right: Mace defeated every man he fought, barring Joe Coburn, but he did not win every battle.

AL., Bridgeport, Conn.—We believe Harry Macarthy is his real name.

J. GORMAN.—They are not up to the mark.

C. KINGSLEY.—Mace and O'Baldwin have never fought.

E. H. D., Brooklyn.—See answer to Cos.

SHREVEPORT, La.—The length of the Great Eastern is 692 feet.

JAMES GREAVES, Philadelphia.—He did not. You win.

F. J. H., Montgomery.—The man whoran from second is out.

CRYSTAL, Brooklyn.—We are attended to in that direction.

L. O., Richmond, Ind.—We do not require one at present.

TYRRELL.—We'll give it a reading, and publish, if suitable.

J. R. DUNLAP.—We do not know where Waterman is.

CHARLEY GLEASON.—The advertisement costs $1.20.

RHINE, Annapolis, Md.—They are entitled to vote.

COL. LEW SMITH.—Thank you for the old bill.

"NORMAN."—You need not refer to the place.

A. L. P., Brooklyn.—No interest whatever.

COAL HEAVER.—C wins $20.

T. P. P.—It is prohibited by the rules.

ACTIVE.—We cannot say.

J. T. Buffalo.—Declined.

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

☞ Advices dated City of Mexico, Aug. 27th, confirm the reported destruction of the palace of the national congress by fire, but the archives were saved. The historic sword of General Iturbide is reported to have been stolen. The Masonic fraternity held a lodge of sorrow on the occasion of the death of President Juarez, at the Iturbide theatre. The soldiers of the regular army stationed at Guanajuato mutinied, murdered their commander, and robbed the treasury of $50,000.

THE RING.

THE LIGHT WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

As is our custom, we propose to here offer a few remarks upon the recent fight between Arthur Chambers and Billy Edwards, which lack of space prevented our incorporating in the account thereof which appears upon another page. There is, however, one wanting to complete the story told by the rounds. That Chambers found in Edwards decidedly more than his match was apparent to those who witnessed the encounter, and will be patent to all who carefully peruse the report of the same. He was outfought at all points, receiving much more punishment than he administered, while his blows were immeasurably inferior in point of power to those of his antagonist. He is a good two-handed fighter, but he does not hit straight from the shoulder, like Billy, particularly when he employs the right hand, which is frequently. Finding that he could not stand off and hit with Edwards, he invariably rushed to a close after the manner of Mace, and thus hastened the conclusion of the round. At in-fighting he was more upon an equality with his long-armed antagonist, and proved himself superior to the latter in wrestling, though the falls received by Billy did not seem to shake him much, as the ground was soft, and he seldom wasted his strength in struggling to avoid being thrown, allowing himself to go down as easily as possible. There was much difference in the backing of Deery resulted that, barring a run of luck, he was a defeated man. Impressed with this idea, and seeing no chance to "hedge" to any appreciable extent, the backer went home about his business.

THE GAME.

M. H. Hewins, of Hartford, having been chosen referee, at twenty minutes past eight the players approached the table. Winning the lead, Daly counted after narrowly escaping a miss, and ran 44 in neat style. This rare "start-away" made him feel good, and in a short time he entered upon his second hundred, leading Deery by 54. This he soon increased to 153, against 69. At this stage a scratch, for which he had made, started Daly upon the largest run of the game, 59, and perhaps as pretty a run as was ever seen in a match on a 5x10 table. This he followed up with 18, 8 and 11, making his total 244 against 111, on even innings. Deery had not played well at the start, but now he was in wretched luck, the balls kissing and running straight on him. Ordinarily the younger player has the sympathies of the spectators, but on this occasion it was Deery who commanded them. The way he labored to counteract Daly's immense lead, and the rebuffs he had to encounter from dame Fortune, had necessarily to gain sympathy for him. Aside from this, Daly was claiming altogether too much, taking too many chances on the referee not having seen the stroke, to entitle him to impartial consideration at the spectators, many of whom remembered Daly as a marker, and wondered if the cheap tricks of the boy had grown with the man. The frequency and frivolousness of his claims were commented upon all over the house, and after what appeared to be reasonably based. From the 28th to the 37th innings Deery scored a total of 36, and Daly 43, making the respective tallies 288 and 181. Deery now made 19, Daly offsetting it with 24 and 27, changing the game from 150 and 181 to 169 and 232. The next twenty innings Daly made no double figures, while Deery put in 22, 15 and 23, from the 43d to the 54th innings. In the 63d innings Daly piled up 21 in handsome style, leaving him but 7 to get, while Deery, on the same 27th. In nine innings more Daly finished the game, in which he had largely outplayed his antagonist from first to last, winning by 208. The score:

CRICKET.

THE ENGLISH ELEVEN IN TORONTO.

The best display yet made against the gentlemen's eleven, in Canada, was that shown in the match at Toronto, played Sept. 3d, 4th and 5th. In the first place the grounds were in better condition, and the wicket the best of the three pitched; secondly, the twenty-two included stronger players, as a general thing, than either of the other teams, and lastly, the Canadians went in with more confidence than did the other twenty-two; while, on the part of the Englishmen, there was a lack of energy, and, handled the willow with more effect, their forte being batting.

The game opened with the eleven at the bat, Grace and Ottaway leading off as usual, and the latter was disposed of, the pair only run up the total of 142. The next best score of the innings was Appleby's 29, not out, all of the eleven, too, scoring double figures, except Horsby and Francis. The first day's play ended with the Canadians' 1st inn., at 5 o'clock, the total being eleven added to 74 in their score, leaving their total at 319. The Toronto side then went in, and before they were put out they had scored 97 runs, of which Fewings made 29, not out, was the highest. The Canadian's fight being the winning best score. When the third day's play closed the Toronto players were found to have run up the score of 118 runs for their second innings, of which E. Hemsted contributed 28, not out. The score:—

AQUATICS.

EAST SIDE ASSOCIATION REGATTA.

The above rowing association held their annual regatta on Sept. 4th. The first race was in single oared sheils, for members of the association, the contestants being M. T. Gibbs in the Alert, Alexander Jackson in the Idol, and Benjamin B. De Grushe in the Alice. The course was from a stake-boat at the foot of Seventeenth street, East river, around Blackwell's Island and return. At 3 P. M. they started, Jackson taking the lead and maintaining it for the first quarter. De Grushe close behind, with Gibbs twenty yards at least in the rear. At East Twenty-sixth street De Grushe led Jackson three lengths, Gibbs gaining gradually. At Forty-seventh street De Grushe was still ahead, but passed by Gibbs before reaching Sixtieth street, with Jackson in the rear, fast pulling a steady stroke and pushing De Grushe vigorously for second place. Gibbs, meanwhile, maintaining his advantage. A sloop coming down from Hell Gate at this time with a fair wind, caused Gibbs to lose his coolness and, in the excitement of the moment, he let go one oar, and before he was able to recover it both of his opponents passed him, Jackson leading slightly. On turning the upper end of the island, Jackson, through some mistake, made a long and unnecessary turn, while De Grushe, who had evidently been there before, took a short cut, by means of which he left Jackson over twenty yards behind. Gibbs, who had evidently become desperate through the mishap before alluded to, now pulled up with vigor, caught Jackson, passed him prettily, and went with a will for De Grushe. The race began in earnest now, while the passing vessels cheered Gibbs to the echo. The lower end of the island was passed, with De Grushe still leading, but evidently showing signs of distress. Opposite Hunter's Point ferry Gibbs was leading, with Jackson pressing hard for second place. It took but a short time now to finish, and Gibbs, putting on a good spurt, came in a victor, leading Jackson about twenty lengths, with De Grushe four lengths behind Jackson. Time, 46 minutes.

The second race was for two-oared boats, as follows:—James McEntee and George Patterson in the Aurora Dan; Nolan and Mike Hoffman in the Horace Greeley; and Matthew Lynch and John Kelly in the Annie J. The race for the first mile and a half was close and exciting, but Kelly, of the Annie J., giving out through sickness, left the contest between the other two. The race was well contested, but was eventually won by the Horace Greeley, who passed the score scarcely a length in advance. Darkness approaching, the other races on the programme were deferred till some day this week.

The prizes were then distributed, as follows:—Mr. Gibbs, $20 and the silver badge presented by the association; Jackson, $30; De Grushe, $20; and the winners of the pair oared race, $30 each.

The evening before the race the club held their annual meeting and elected William Monks, president; Alexander Jackson, vice-president; A. W. Moynihan, secretary; M. T. Gibbs, treasurer; Daniel Nolan, James McEntee and Thomas L. Lemmey, executive committee. A match was made after the conclusion of the above between M. T. Gibbs and Dan Nolan, the race to come off between the 10th and 20th inst.

THE GULICK CLUB REGATTA.

This prominent and popular amateur aquatic association commenced the celebration of their annual rowing regatta on the Pleasant Valley course, on the noble Hudson, on Thursday, the 5th inst., turning out with a full fleet, accompanied by a large and genial gathering of invited guests, including lady friends in gay attire. The course for the three mile races was from Pleasant Valley pier, to a stake-boat anchored in mid stream, thence to another down stream and return, thus giving the spectators an excellent sight of the races. Delay occurred in starting the first race, it being as late as 4 P. M., before the word was given therefor, the entries being

The start was a good one; Bryson, although he was in a common working boat while the others were in sheils, getting off with the lead, but through danger of a foul had to slack up, when Moore went ahead, but was speedily overhauled by Spear, who again took the lead and kept it all through, coming in winner in 32 min. 30 secs., Kenney second, Moore third, Kobbe fourth and Spear last. A delay of half an hour occurred before the next start was made, which was for

Lohman got the lead in this, but Devlin soon took his place and was not overtaken, he finally coming in victor by five lengths in 15 min. 7 secs.; Becker second and Lohman, Ritschy and Foshay in the order named. The next event was a

This was a close and well pulled race, the Washingtonians having a trifling advantage at the start, both going off at a good speed at the rate of forty strokes per minute, of four being neatly avoided on nearing the first stake-boat, which the Washingtons turned first, with the Jeffersons close after them, and both went with a will for the lower boat. Despite all their efforts, however, the Jeffersons could not make it bow and bow, but were finally beaten by only three-fourths of a length, in 20 min. 14secs. It was an interesting sight, and extremely gratifying and revivifying to the lookers on, who gave an equal share of their approving plaudits to both crews. There were two more races on the programme, a barge and tub race, but the lateness of the hour, 6.30 P. M., enforced a postponement to a future day, and torpedo-rean exercises were engaged in with exhilarating effect for the remainder of the evening.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB REGATTA.

This club held their annual regatta off Brown's dock, 92d street, E. R., on the 4th inst., and notwithstanding the low status of the thermometer, the attendance of spectators of both sexes was numerous. There were four races in all, the first a single scull, distance about two and a half miles, for the club's junior championship, in working boats, with three competitors, viz.:—Hugh McCullough, J. Sullivan and C. A. Leterer, which the former won in 21½ minutes, with Sullivan second.

The second race was between Henry Hughes, James L. McCahill and P. S. Biglin, for the senior championship, same distance, of which Hughes was the winner in 18¾min., 6secs., ahead of Biglin, who was second.

The third event was by professionals, distance about five miles; that is, twice over the two and a half mile course, for prizes of $75 and $33, respectively, for first and second man in, donated by E. Browne, an angler of repute. The starters therefor were John Biglin, who is matched against Ellis Ward for a race at Nyack, on the Hudson, on the 19th inst., William Hays and Frank Bell. Hays led at the start, but, as was fully expected, Biglin soon overhauled him when he made the necessary efforts, and won easily in 44min., 30secs., with Hays second.

A six oared gig race, between the Bachelors and Benedicts of the club, was the fourth and last event, in which the fair sex, as a matter of course, were highly interested, marriageable daughters going for the former, and better halves for the latter, as a general thing, as might be expected. The unspliced were J. Murray, bow; J. L. McCahill, W. Hurley, J. O'Carroll, Thos. J. Allen, W. H. Hughes, stroke, and H. T. McCullough, coxswain; the married representatives were J. Dugan, bow; D. Sullivan, C. A. Leterer, W. J. Cotter, H. S. Taylor, P. S. Biglin, stroke, and R. Riley, coxswain. The crews looked well in their speedy craft, as they awaited the signal to "get," and the waving of handkerchiefs, parasols, fans, etc., by the ladies, not only infused the oarists with pluck to do their best, but added general interest to the scene. When the final word was given they went off with a will, and a pretty even start, but the accepted adage, "youth will tell," was soon in the way of again being endorsed, for the singles began to draw ahead of the plurals, finally winning by about four lengths, in 39min. 35secs. The judges were Messrs. H. Farrell, Barney O'Neil and Peter Warren; C. A. Feverelly, referee, and F. J. Englehardt, time keepers.

SCULLING ON THE CHARLES RIVER.
Doyle Victorious.

The sculling match for the amateur championship of New England and the possession of the emblems of such championship took place on Sept. 5th, over the Charles river course, between Thomas F. Doyle, Jr., son of the veteran oarsman of that name, and already a distinguished amateur sculler, and Charles Blaney, well known as an accomplished oar-man on the above river. The race, which was to have taken place on Sept. 2d, was, in consequence of the roughness of the water, postponed from day to day, and finally had to be contested in "dumpy" water. The time fixed for the race was 1 o'clock, but the principals did not put in an appearance till half an hour later. The sheils in which they pulled were much alike in construction and size, and the two oarsmen appeared to good advantage in their "undress" Doyle wearing the red colors and Blaney the blue. There was a very large crowd present. Doyle was the favorite. Mr. Thomas H. Butler acted as referee and starter. At 25 minutes before 2 o'clock the boats were drawn into line and sent off for the three mile pull. A fair start was effected; Blaney having the choice of position took the inside. The pull was made in 22 minutes and 30 seconds, Doyle leading by about half a boat's length as they passed the judges' boat. The race was closely contested throughout, and there is every probability that another match will be arranged.

WARD VS. BIGLIN.—The principals to this one thousand dollar match have been hard at it during the past week, working like beavers to get themselves fit to row for a man's life on Sept. 19th, when their long-existing rivalry as knights of the sculls is to culminate in a five mile race on the Hudson, opposite Nyack, which is about half-way between home and home. At the present time both are in excellent trim, not having had much flesh to take off when the match was entered into, as they have plied the spruces pretty regularly ever since the season opened, and each exhibits much confidence in his ability to leave his antagonist behind. Betting so far, has been dull, with Biglin slightly the favorite, but it will, doubtless, be lively enough when the opposing factions come together on the broad bosom of ye noble and majestic Hudson. On Thursday, 12th inst., the final deposit, four hundred dollars a side, must be added to the two hundred now up. Doc. Withers is the final stakeholder, to whom the full amount will be transferred. The referee is to be chosen on the morning of the 19th, and the race is to be started between 2 and 3 o'clock, P. M.

THE ATLANTIC BOAT CLUB regatta was held on the Hudson, off the Elysian Fields, on the 7th inst., and proved very successful. The match race between the Atlantics and Gulicks, in six-oared sheils, was won by the latter by half a length in 19:43, distance, three miles. A single scull race followed, and was won by Christie Ackerman.

A DOUBLE SCULL RACE in Whitehall boats came off on the 4th inst., on Newburgh bay, we are informed, between Turner and Miles and the Ryan Brothers, which the former won. The victors are to pull against two other Newburgh youths one day this week, we understand, for $25 a side.

JOHN A. BIGLIN.—A letter addressed to you lies at this office.

PAYNE VS. BLAUVELT.—A match for $500 came off on Saturday, the 7th inst., at Fleetwood Park, between Ira Paine and Henry Blauvelt, the former giving the latter three dead birds in twenty. The conditions were 21 yards rise, 80 yards boundary, 1oz. shot, and H and T traps. Paine killed 19 and missed 1; Blauvelt killed 13 and missed 8, thus losing the match. We give the score:—

PAINE	01111111111111111—19 out of 20.
BLAUVELT	10110101011111110—13, missed 8.

MISS MARIAN TAYLOR
AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
The programme was concluded with the fairy extravaganza of "Prince Amabel," the leading role of which was borne by Miss Marian Taylor. Besides a rare personal beauty, Miss Taylor has an appreciation of the meaning of the word burlesque and a talent quite sufficient to make her a pleasing artist. She was very nervous last night, for the piece was new to most of the cast, an the orchestra, for want of practice, rendered an ineffective support. She received much praise, and will be regarded as an excellent lady. This evening is the first ladies' night.—National Republican, Sept. 3d.

There are many gems in the programme, but the most pretentious piece is that of the fairy extravaganza entitled "Prince Amabel." It is a good burlesque, and if it had the place of "Infatuation," a comedy on the programme that will never immortalize its author, it would, perhaps, be quite as pleasing to the audience. "Prince Amabel" has for principals Miss Linnie Buchanan, as English Polly, an English actress and an English blonde, and, to use the word in the English sense, she is exceeding "clever."

A burlesquer is one who makes a strong contrast between the subject and the manner of considering it, and it is a character widely different from that of the mere buffoon, or one who makes a practice of amusing others by low tricks. Miss Taylor has the talent to understand this difference, hence her delineation of the "youth small in stature though great in sighs" is one that makes constantly increasing impressions in its favor. The Prince acts well his part. He is full of life and vigor, and his own abandon to all the situations of the plot, his own fine and bright spirit, carries all the lesser characters of the burlesque along with him in the same vein of ridicule and fun.

There was a new feature in the entertainment.—National Republican, Sept. 6th.

A SCIENTIFIC RING FIGHT

BETWEEN

BILLY EDWARDS AND ARTHUR CHAMBERS,

OF NEW YORK,

FOR THE

Light-Weight Championship and $1,000 a Side.

FOUGHT AT SQUIRREL ISLAND, CANADA, SEPT. 4th.

Chambers Declared the Victor by Reason of an Alleged Foul.

TWENTY-SIX ROUNDS IN 1 HOUR 35 MIN.

GREAT DISSATISFACTION WITH THE DECISION.

Offers to Back Edwards Against Chambers Again at Long Odds.

SPECIAL REPORT FOR THE N.Y. CLIPPER.

The match made several months since between those prominent members of the light-weight division, Arthur Chambers and Billy Edwards, for the championship and two thousand dollars in money, and which was expected to prove a model encounter, by which would serve to prop up the failing fortunes of the ring in America, was consummated on the 4th inst. at Squirrel Island, C. W., and after twenty-six rounds had been fought in an hour and thirty-five minutes, a decision was rendered in favor of Chambers, upon a claim of foul made by his umpire and seconds. Below we present a full and accurate report, written by our representative:—

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE PRINCIPALS.

Billy Edwards is a native of the land of the rose, having first made his mark in the world at West Birmingham, Eng., on the 21st day of December, 1844, which makes him twenty-seven years old at the present time. In altitude he measures 5 feet 4½ inches, without his shoes; his frame is well knit and his muscles are well developed, particularly those of the arms and upper portion of the body. His nose is very prominent, his cheek bones high and his eyes deep set. He learned the trade of iron moulding in the old country, where he also worked in the coal mines. Being naturally a sporting element during his early youth, and not disliking fistic sports, he took lessons from several masters and soon became a proficient with the gloves. Ere he had attained his majority he succeeded in defeating all who aspired to the honor on the 10th of May, 1865, he stepped upon Manhattan Island. Not long afterwards he made his debut before the metropolitan fancy at a sparring exhibition, and succeeded in creating a most favorable impression. His inherent love for the manly art of self-defence, and such entertainments, nearly always lending a hand, and his setto with the late Jim Fox will ever be remembered by those who witnessed them, for a series of more terrific rounds never took place with the mittens. Their frequent meets led to the making of overtures for a match in which the gloves were to be cast aside, and a meeting was held at our office to make arrangements, but we couldn't come to an agreement. Until February, 1868, Billy continued to work steadily at his trade, when, having been promised the requisite amount of scrip, and being desirous of proving by ocular demonstration how he could pervade within the backbone of a man, he entered the ring, one of Sam Collyer, then in the zenith of his fame. It was thought that Edwards wouldn't have a living show in this encounter, and almost any odds could have been obtained by those who cared anything about betting that way, but Billy was then very few and far between. The match was for the championship of light-weights and one thousand dollars a side, at 124 lbs., and they fought at Cherry Point, at the mouth of the Cone river, on the Virginia shore of the Potomac, nearly opposite Fort Monroe, in New York land, who showed himself to be by far the most skillful boxer and much the hardest hitter, came off triumphant, after fighting 47 rounds, occupying one hour and fourteen minutes, at the end of which time he got up and walked off the field in cold ground. Immediately after his return home Edwards published a card in which he would never again stand up in the prize ring, and to the challenges received from different persons he paid no attention. Finally, however, annoyed by the effusions of this character coming from various quarters, and especially by a sharply worded one from Patsy Sheppard, he deposited one hundred dollars and offered to fight him for that amount, or for any sum not exceeding $500, at 120 lbs., leaving the challenge open to anybody else in case Patsy failed to come to time. Sheppard's backers not showing up, Collyer offered to make a match at 128lbs., but Edwards couldn't see his way clear, and nothing came of it, but he made a match at 124lbs., for a thousand a side. Their second encounter took place at Mystic Island, N. Y., on the 2d of March, 1870, and Edwards again came off victor, more easily than before, after contending forty-seven minutes, the referee, Jerry Donovan, declaring Collyer and his antagonist being laid out senseless by a left hander on the jaw in the closing round. It was asserted that the poor exhibition made by the Baltimorean was due to the fact that his jaw had been shattered in the third round, and some time afterward he authorized us to insert a paragraph to the effect that a friend would stake $1,000 on him against $800 put up by Edwards, provided Billy agreed to fight within five months from that time, as he had something else to attend to. Billy paid no heed to this until July, when he staked a century, and called on the challenger to show cause. On July 29th articles were signed, the stipulations of which were that Edwards should fight Collyer for $2,000 a side, at catch-weight, for the title of light weight champion, Collyer to put up $1,000 against $800. When the time came to post the final deposit Collyer's share, $250, failed to come to hand, and a forfeit was declared in favor of Edwards, the referee empowered to appoint the stakeholder for the amount forfeited, which he recovered on the 24th, 1871, the Edwards party making it good. The week following Billy made a match for $1,000 a side with Ned Callahan, challenged Sam to fight at catch weight, for an even thousand a side, in the same ring in which Mace and Coburn were to have fought, but the def wasn't accepted, though they met and had a rough-and-tumble in Edwards' saloon, on Centre street, this city. His next opponent was Tim Collins, a match being made between them, March 13th, 1871, to fight at 124lbs., for one thousand dollars a side, on May 24th. The authorities of this city prevented a meeting taking place on that day, at Cold Spring, L. I., but they met at a barge on the Sound, on the morning of the following day, when, after milling for two hours and fifteen minutes, during which they got through ninety-five rounds, darkness compelled a cessation of hostilities, the referee, Geo. Leese, ordering them to meet again on the 31st inst., when Edwards was declared, and fought Collyer, Dec. 23d, 1868, Arthur winning in 4 rounds, which consumed 23 minutes. Harry Kimberley now came to the front again, proposing to fight Edwards for the amount specified, or for any sum up to $10 being subscribed, they contended for the possession thereof in a room at Manchester, Jan. 22d, 1869, at catch-weight, the member from Brummagem having again to lower his colors, after 22 rounds had been fought and 1 hour gone. He next find the Salford pugilist at the Epsom Spring Meeting, in 1869, when Billy Shaw, taking advantage of his presence, matched him against his late trainer, Bat Mullins, (as a rial for the latter, who had beaten Tim Haggerty), a purse of $250 being the stake, and slashing fight of 43 rounds, occupying 1 hour and 15 minutes, they concluded to divide, May 27, 1868, near Epsom race course. At the Chester meeting, in the spring of 1870, he was again matched with Enoch Fritzlie, (who had fought Johnson and Hemmings), at 116 lbs., for £50 a side, but the latter forfeited the first deposit, £2, and that was the last heard of the match. A few weeks after this he was pitted against Jem Mace, at Ashton-under-Lyne, on which occasion his weight was 119½lbs. After seeing some service in the Royal Navy, he at the early age of seventeen, turned his attention to pugilistic matters, and, as he says, "entered the ring," he was matched with Arthur Webber, a youth residing in the same town, the match being at catch-weight, for a fiver a side. They fought at Mode Wheel, in the Manchester district, Oct. 1st, 1864, when Arthur gained his maiden triumph, after milling 35 minutes, during which 20 rounds were contested. So pleased were his friends with the manner in which the youthful Arthur had performed in the meet, that they looked about for somebody of greater calibre to pit him against. So he had Jem Burns, who had fought Bill Ingram a short time before) as the man, and with him a match was made upon very favorable terms, Evans holding Arthur cheap, that is £50 apiece, and they came together at Flouch, near Haslo Head Bridge, Nov. 8, 1865, and before and then did Chambers take the conceit out of the bold Edward, who had to cry a go after they had contended 44 rounds in 1 hour and 30 minutes. The light of weight in the battle, Arthur had the start was the ascendant, and he was looked upon as a prime little 'un by his fellow-townsmen. He had scarcely got off training when he was again matched, his opponent this time being Jim Prior, also of Salford. The weight for £2 a side, at catch weight, Feb. 6, 1866, Chambers again coming off with flying colors, the fight lasting but 30 minutes, in which time they rattled through 19 rounds. On the 7th of August, that same year, he stood up before Jim Brady, a Manchesterian, at Newburth, for £25 a side, at 116 lbs. After 30 rounds had been got through, occupying 1 hour and 20 minutes, the authorities interfered, and a suspension of hostilities was pendered, they not having been fought with the gloves. Moss, on the Manchester and Liverpool Railway, when Chambers was for the first time defeated, after contending gamely 63 rounds in 1 hour and 5 minutes, when he fell, after that year his friends matched him against Dick Goodwin, alias "Spring heeled Dick," of Manchester, for £25 a side, at 116 lbs. The engagement took place at Acton Bridge, Delamere Forrest, Cheshire, Feb. 14, 1867, 105 rounds being fought in 2 hours and 30 minutes, when, neither being able to finish, they agreed to draw. The subject of our memoir now made a visit to the British metropolis, where he was taken in charge by Billy Shaw, who got up a purse of £25 a be contested by Chambers and one, and beating a fair came off in the London district, May 21, 1867, at catch-weight, and ended in the purse being divided, by consent of Arthur, who received £15 and Finch £4, after fighting 1 hour and 10 minutes. Upon his return to the Cottonopolis at the end of the year, his friends found him a customer in the person of Harry Kimberley, of Birmingham, (who had fought Samkins, Verrall and Blake), for one thousand pounds and 20 up towards midnight, and as the assembly gradually departed the general verdict, frequently and emphatically expressed, was that it had been a merry day for all. The prizes ranged from $25 to $5, and a gold medal was offered by the Montreal Club to the association securing the largest number of prizes, which their own succeeded in winning. The committee of arrangements were chief John Watt, chairman; second chieftain James Grimmond, treasurer; third chieftain John Taylor, secretary; assisted by ex-chief George Mitchell; clansmen, George T. Addison, James West and Andrew F. Dykes, to whom great credit is due for the success of this grand gathering of the clans. The Judges were Henry Chadwick, of Brooklyn; G. Gardner, of Philadelphia; James McClellan, Chief Waltham, of Brooklyn, and H. H. Buermeyer, of the Athletic Club.

AN EASY RIDDLE.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY OLIVER J. LAWRENCE.

Full oft and oft there comes to me
What I do deem best melody—
It is not music's studied beat
When sound, it's watchful mate, doth greet
With challenge well—attuned and sweet;
But music better than this,
A music that I dread to miss;
For every note doth make me start,
Though every note I know by heart;
Its echoes through my pulses dart.
Ah, soul, why should I longer dream
To puzzle's thee with this thin theme
Of love, that, told aloud or muttered,
Is full aware it must be uttered?
For from the first thou well hast guessed,
I mean thy footsteps lightly pressed,
Advancing, tremulous and fleet,
Impatient lover me to meet.

SHOT BY HER HUSBAND.

Doubtful Conduct of Wife and Mother-in-Law.

A tragical affair occurred at Phillipsburg, N. J., on the 1st inst., which gave rise to no little excitement round about that region. The history of the case is about as follows:—Five years ago Matilda Portner, a widow, returned from Easton, Pa., to the neighboring city of Phillipsburg, and opened a lager beer saloon. Wilhelmina, called Mina, her only child, was then a girl of 18, large and fleshy, but she had an attractive face, and was of a genial, happy disposition. She was the loadstone that drew customers to her mother's place, and she had many warm admirers, among them being Andrew J. Hulme, a conductor on the Jersey Central Railroad, who is twelve years her senior. He pressed his suit, and notwithstanding the mother's opposition, induced Mina to marry him after a year's courtship, but not until he had effected her ruin. Hulme took his bride to Easton, but she returned to her mother's house three days afterward, saying her husband had deceived her, and that she had no affection for him, as he was so old and plain in appearance. He had told her that he was wealthy, and that she would have an elegant house to live in, which was false.

Soon after returning to her mother's, Mrs. Hulme engaged a Newark detective to watch her husband, and he obtained evidence against Hulme by which his wife secured a divorce. This was one year after their marriage. During the three years of their legal separation Mina has several times left her home and gone to live with Hulme as his wife, the last occasion being about fourteen months ago, and since that time she has repeatedly refused to go with him again. To keep Hulme away from her daughter, Mrs. Portner had him arrested on warrants three times, and he was put under bonds not to enter her house as he always disturbed the peace when there. On the evening of Aug. 31st., however, Hulme went into the saloon and asked Mina to go with him to Easton. Mayor Beers says she went. The mother affirms her daughter did not go with him, but refused, because he was intoxicated and displayed a pistol. He remained in the saloon about ten minutes. Later in the evening he visited Johnson's restaurant and the Apagar Hotel, where he showed his pistol, and said he was going to use it. He called by name four persons whom he said had been criminally intimate with his wife, and threatened to kill them at sight. In the Apagar Hotel he extended an invitation to all to take a last drink with him, adding, "To-night will finish up this business. Between 2 and 3 o'clock on Sunday morning Hulme went to the rear door of Mrs. Portner's house and burst it open. He then proceeded to the second floor, where the bedrooms are. To reach Mina's apartment he had to pass through the one occupied by her mother and grandmother. The frightened women tried to bar his passage, but they were rudely pushed aside. Gaining Mina's room, he presented a pistol at her head, and said he would blow her brains out if she did not go out and walk with him. Trembling with fear, and hoping to pacify him and save her life, Mina dressed herself and went with Hulme into the street. They walked up Market street to Main, and then retraced their steps. Passing the house they went on to the Central Railroad depot, where he again drew his pistol, and after accusing her of infidelity fired three shots in rapid succession. He then ran off a few steps, halted, and facing about, discharged the weapon twice more.

C. Moser, a watchman on the Lehigh Valley bridge, heard the pistol reports and at once went to the spot. Mr. Moser called to his assistance some railroad employees, and they carried the wounman to her home and instantly set out for medical aid. Three physicians were soon in attendance. They found two wounds in the head, one ball having passed completely through the skull, and another in the left temple. A probe six inches long failed to reach this ball, and as its course was directly through the brain, its effect is necessarily fatal. A third wound was found in the left hand, the ball passing up the arm beyond the reach of a probe.

Hulme escaped, but had not been arrested. It is said that he has not left the city, and that several persons have seen him, but the rumor cannot be traced to a trustworthy source. It is known he has friends who will conceal him, and it is said the police will not exert themselves to capture him. Mayor Beers publishes the following:—

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Sept. 1.

☞ CHIEF POLICE:—: A reward of two hundred dollars will be paid for the arrest of Jack Hulme, who shot his wife. Size, 6 feet five inches; sandy goatee, grey mixed suit and black felt hat.

W. R. BEERS, Mayor.

At a meeting of the common council on Monday night, the reward offered by the mayor was republished, and in honor will have to pay the amount from his own resources. Mrs. Portner has also offered $200 reward for the culprit's capture. On the next morning after the deed a letter from Hulme was picked up on Mr. Henry Seager's door step. It had no address, but bore the words:—"Please open." In it he acknowledged his intention to murder his wife and then kill himself. The names of the persons he charges with criminal intimacy with his wife are omitted, otherwise the following is a correct copy:—

THE MURDERER'S LETTER.

——— and others, whose names I will not mention, are the cause of my committing this act. I loved this woman dearer —better than my own life—but she has led me on to do this by her conduct toward me, and her associating with these men.

She has disgraced me and herself fearfully. My God! it makes me wild, distracted, to think of it. I have nothing to live for in this world. My life and her's must pay the forfeit, and I hope the Lord will forgive me for the act. May the good Lord take my soul out of this world to himself. And may his direct curses rest on Matilda Portner through life. She is murdering my boy by inches. Curse her forever and ever. May she never see a moment's peace in this world, for she never will in the next. Curse her, I would send her out of the world myself, but I want her to live to suffer. Hell and Heaven's curses rest on her soul.

ANDREW J. HULME.

In giving particulars of the case, the N. Y. Sun, of the 4th inst., say that Hulme was generally considered an inoffensive man, and his friends say his wife's conduct—for they deny the divorce story—has driven him to intemperance. In canvassing the crime and its cause, Mrs. Portner's character, as well as that of her daughter, is severely commented upon by the inhabitants of Phillipsburg. It is said that the mother's name is not above reproach, and that her bad example has led Mina astray. It is asserted that Hulme and his wife would have lived happily together but for the mother's interference; that she wanted her daughter in the saloon to attract customers, and that she had no care for the improprieties of Mina while she could be kept there in the interest of the business. The idea that any one will arrest the criminal for a reward is generally ridiculed; in fact, many think he had a justifiable excuse for committing the deed. There are hundreds of persons in that city who will harbor and aid him in every possible way.

MORELL COURTSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

One Henry Leroy Morell, who writes "Hon." before his name, claims to be a scion of the noble English house of which Lord Clarendon is the head, and a graduate of Oxford, came to New York a year or two ago, and since then, having won and betrayed the affections of a young lady in the City of Brooklyn, named Julia H. Lyons, is now lurking, it is supposed, on the Canadian side, at Niagara Falls, with the detectives after him. The following is one of his far progressed seductive epistles:—

"MY DARLING JE.—I cannot tell you how my heart beats with joy at the recollection of that first kiss you so fondly allowed me to snatch from your loving and blushing lips. That kiss—

"'Humid seal of soft affections,
Transient pledge of future bliss,
Dearest tie of your connections—
Love's first snow-drop virgin kiss.'

"But why do you seem to doubt me still? Have you no faith in me? Do you believe that I am capable of running a vista di quelle donne without feeling myself to be the most depraved of human beings? No, darling, trust me. Love-like fondness so thrilling and sincere as thine grows riper with every pressure of a warm and loving kiss. When lingering on your lips, breathing in that pure, sweet confidence you placed in me, my whole nature was thrilled as I thought I saw a thousand blushing apparitions start from beneath your flashing eyes. But I have won you at last, my darling, and no more shall that monster, jealousy, separate us for one hour. Yes, most precious one, in that tender embrace, our hearts beating against each other, we were as twinned lambs frisking in the sun, forgetting the past, living but for the present—that moment to me the crowning success of my life for I can now make sure of my success in your explicit confidence.

"And yet, dearest Julietta, why did you make me promise to be true to you? Do you doubt my honor? Do you think for a moment that I am such a vile wretch as to betray that woman who reposes all her trust, her confidence, her honor in me? Now, dearest Julia, I intend calling upon you very soon, for I cannot remain away from you. Why do you persist in having me call at your house when your mother is present? Cant you so arrange it that she should be out; or rather, cant you make some arrangement to meet me somewhere? At any rate, dear girl, only name the hour that I can call, and I assure you that I will be with you, as I now am in spirit.

"Adio, mio carissima, and, with a fond and tender embrace, believe me to be, lovely, your darling and precious

"HARRY LEROY MORELL."

A SHOCKING CASE OF RAPE.—On Tuesday, the 27th ult., Matthew O'Connell, of Braytonville, was arraigned before Judge Brockwell, at North Adams, Mass., charged with the dreadful crime of rape upon Sarah Wilcox, of Braytonville, a little girl not quite eight years of age. He was a boarder at the house of Mrs. Jones, in Braytonville, where Mrs. Wilcox and her daughter boarded. The girl swore that on Sunday afternoon, August 11th, O'Connell enticed her into his room and, at first tried persuasion, but failing in this, threw her on the bed and committed the outrage. He then gave her money to keep silent about it. The matter was concealed for a week, when a physician was called to attend the girl and discovered the evidence of the crime. On being questioned the girl revealed the facts. The testimony of Dr. Lawrence was concinsive as to the horrible results, but as to who was responsible he could not say. O'Connell denies the whole charge, but Judge Rockwell found him guilty and bound him over under $5,000 bonds, which he could not furnish.

JEALOUSY, says Arthur Helps, the well-known English essayist, is at once the meanest and the most unaccountable of vices. What belongs to us we shall have inevitably, and what we want and have not we shall never win by unreason. If we are lovely we shall be loved; and if we are unlovely we shall not be loved, no matter whether any one takes its place or not. Jealousy of the wealth, the social importance, or the happiness of others, is alike unaccountable and absurd. Your own house is not lowlier because your neighbor's is four stories high and brown stone. If he should fall, and have to give up his carriage, it would only crowd the horse cars a little more, and by no means provide you with chaise or buggy. What is it in human nature that makes our poor fare seem poorer because our neighbor is eating roast duck and drinking champagne? To envy the love seems equally idle. Hearts keep their accounts, usually, with very tolerable fairness. We shall receive that of which we are worthy, no more—and what is our own by virtue of our desert no fate can take away.

INTERLOCUTOR.—What's dis you are laughing at, brother Bones? Your countenance is actually radiant with de

BONES.—To-be! Radiant wid delight, oh sooar, I s'pose I am. Well, I've good reason. De fac' am, I'se been on a excursion to Coney Island for de benefit of my complexion.

INT.—That was sensible, sir. There's nothing like the sea air to strengthen the constitution.

BONES.—Yes, specially when it's mixed wid a little good Old Tom.

INT.—I should rather think that would play the Old Harry with the constitution.

BONES.—Well, anyhow, dere's nuffin' like a mouriot to de sea side, wid or widout de oder ting. Dere's de glorious sea breeze dat comes sweepin' so fresh from de outer bay, and de fresh young men dat goes danglin' after dem nice young gals in de blue sashes and de dress of white muslin; and den de scruff.

INT.—Surf, sir—surf.

BONES.—Well, I said scurf.

INT.—The schoolmaster must be a sourify fellow who could teach such pronunciation. But come to the point.

BONES.—I'm comin' to de pint—de pint of Coney Island. Well, we all went ashore, and de fust ting we did was to tackle a pint of clam chowder. 'Beast, dat's what dey calls dem round balls of ledder sprinkled wid sand dat dey serves up for it. But, ledder mind. We eat de chowder, and den we put for de breakers—meetin a good many breakers by de way.

INT.—Breakers by the way, sir?

BONES.—Yes—de monty dealers, you know, what breaks all de fellers dat plays against dem. And dere was de sea birds—de snow white gulls wheelin' and circlin' around in de air, and oder gulls flutterin' aroun' de table ob de tree card monty fellers.

INT.—Of whom you was one, I suppose.

BONES.—O, yes, I went in, too, and beat de bank, dat's a fact; dough it proved to be only a sand bank. De feller he flourished some cards afore my face, and says he, laying dem down de wrong side uppermost, says he,—"I bet you a 'five' you can't tell what's on de face o' dem keards." Now, I know'd well enuff what was on dem, for I'd been in dat line myself, so says I, flourishin' de money, says I,—"I bet you a ten dollum bill against de bank dat I kin." "Done!" says he. "Well," says I, "dere's a dence, and a ace, and a tray." You ought to seen de blank look onto de feller's face when he turned up de cards. He saw to once I know'd he'd been pastin' de faces and dere dey was, just as he'd rubbed de odd figgers off. But he didn't dare to say nuffin'; only scowled as he forked over de pile, and I left, smilin'. But I didn't smile when I went to pay for my bitters at de next bar, and foun' dat de pile I'd been winnin' was all counterfeits. "Dat's one of dem monty fellers," yells out de barkeeper, jumping over de counter and makin' for me wid an ice pick; "hustle him out!"

INT.—A nice-pickle you must have found yourself in just then.

BONES.—I don't go dat away any mo'.

INT.—You're wise. Now let us have a little fresh air from our newly arrived Mario.

Beautiful Dreams Linger Near Me.

BY ARTHUR W. FRENCH.

Beautiful dreams linger near me, visions of sweetest delight,
Coming with splendor to cheer me, thro' all the lone weary night;
Fairy-like music is falling, softly and sweet on my ear,
Angelic voices are calling, beautiful dreams linger near.

Chorus—Beautiful dreams linger near me,
Visions of sweetest delight;
Coming with splendor to cheer me,
Thro' all the lone, weary night.

Beautiful dreams never leave me, over my heart weave a spell;
Should you depart it would grieve me more than I ever could tell;
Bring me back joy now departed, bring me back faces so dear,
While I sleep on happy-hearted, beautiful dreams linger near.

Chorus—Beautiful dreams, etc.

"NIG DAT'S ON DE FENCE."

BANJO SOLO, BY GEORGE HARTLEY.

'Tis of a little yaller girl dat I am going to sing,
So give me your attention while I make de banjo ring;
They call her Georgiana, and I tell you she's immense,
She's my latest captivation—I'm de nig dat's on de fence.
Chorus.—Darling little Georgie, belle of Thompson street,
In her Dolly Varden now don't dat gal look neat?
The coons all try to mash her, but dat shows dare lack of sense;
She's my latest captivation—I'm de nig dat's on de fence.

I go to see her every night, and buz to her awhile,
With Bismarck kids upon my hands, and clothes cut out in style,
I wear de latest fashions out, regardless of expense,
For I'm bound to go it heavy—I'm de nig dat's on de fence.
Chorus.—Darling little Georgie, etc.

My Georgiana can sing and dance, she's at it all de day,
And says she feels so jolly when I de banjo play;
She's all dis darkey painted her, her love for me's intense,
For she says she's always happy with the nig dat's on de fence.
Chorus.—Darling little Georgie, etc.

ANDREW J. HULME.

THE CIRCUS SIXTY-THREE YEARS AGO.

Mr. F. E. Paull, of the Marine House, Weir, Taunton, Mass., kindly furnishes us with the following bill of a circus that performed in that town just 63 years ago, viz. on Sept. 4th, 1809, and the first circus that ever visited Taunton, he thinks. He says:—"The original bill I have in my possession, and if any showman wants to see it, let him call on me and I will show it. Messrs. Peppin and Burschard came to Boston from France. They both died years ago, and I suppose that all the company are dead years ago. The old bill, it will be observed, also announces the first appearance of the first negro actor in Taunton, and according to a sketch published in the CLIPPER, by Charley White, some time since, the first individual performer of the negro character, viz.:—Mr. Graupner, of the Old Federal Street Theatre, Boston, in America." Why hotel and barkeepers were admitted free, will puzzle some people, but it was no doubt all right in the olden time. But read the ancient old programme:—

MESSRS. PEPPIN & BURSCHARD'S OLYMPIC ARENA, of Boston, will have the honor to give an exhibition of elegant horsemanship and other amusing feats before the citizens of Taunton and vicinity, under a canvas tent capable of containing 500 spectators at one time, September 4th, 1809, near the post office. Doors open at 1 o'clock and 6 o'clock P. M. To commence at 2 and 7 P. M. Admission to seats one dollar; pit, 50 cents; children half price. Hotel keepers and bar keepers admitted free of charge.

The performances will commence with MR. CODETT and MASTER DIEGO FRENCH, who will display a number of surprising feats of horsemanship, by standing upon the horse's back and riding round the ring at full speed.

MR. MENIAL, a clown, will execute many active feats of buffoonery that will amuse the spectators and please the children. He will sing the song of "High Betty Martin, Tiptoe, Fine," and dance a four and after jig.

MR. PEPPIN will perform the feat of riding two horses, one ahead of the other.

The famous horse NOBLE, introduced by Mr. Peppin, will leap over chairs and bars, terminating with an extra leap through "a hogshead placed upon the back of another horse."

MR. CODET will balance a wagon wheel on his chin, and then will turn three somersaults in succession.

Other feats will be performed by the company.

The whole performance will conclude with a negro song, in character, sung by Mr. Graupner, of the Federal Street Theatre, Boston, in the part of the poor African slave, in the play of "Oronoko; or, The Slave," the manager of the above theatre having consented to let him appear with this exhibition for one week only, he having performed in Boston with astonishing success.

LAID BENEATH THE LILIES.

SONG AND CHORUS BY LOU. J. BEAUCHAMP.

We have laid her 'neath the lilies, with her pale hands on her breast;
We returned to God our darling, where he'll give her peaceful rest.

Far too fair for earth's great trials, far too pure for earth's deceit,
We have laid her 'neath the lilies, with white roses at her feet.
Chorus—For our darling one has left us, left us here to mourn alone,
We have laid her 'neath the lilies, blossoming beside the stone.

One short year ago she blessed us with her first sweet baby smile;
One short year she lived and loved us, then she left us for a while,
For a home with heaven's angels, there to walk the golden street;
So we laid her 'neath the lilies, with white roses at her feet.
Chorus—For our darling one has left us, etc.

In the golden, bright hereafter, when our earthly cares are done,
Once again we'll meet our darling, in the heaven her soul has won;
And no more we'll miss the prattle of our little babe, so sweet,
Though we've laid her 'neath the lilies, with white roses at her feet.
Chorus—For our darling one has left us, etc.

"PATSEY FLYNN."

A DISMAL AND DOLEFUL BALLAD.

Come all ye gay and festive sports, gather round me while I sing—
It's all about a nice young chap, whose name was Patsey Flynn.
Patsey was a Frenchman bold, from the boulevards of Cork;
He left his home at an early age, to sail in a ship for York.

Patsey Flynn, he loved a maiden fair, and this maiden's name was Ann,
But she did'nt care a rap for Pat, for she loved another man.
He asked her to be his one night, but she said:—"Oh out, you brute."
And quickly put a head on Pat, with the heel of her new boot.

Pat, he felt so much distressed, and his grief was so intense,
He hung himself with Pat's green, and stabbed himself with a picket-fence.

One night Pat's ghost appeared to Ann, which frightened her so much,
That she cut her throat with a dose of pill's and blew out her brains with a crunch.

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, Sept. 9th, '72.

Excitable New York has as much as she can stagger under in the way of politics, amusements, sporting events and matters of a mixed and miscellaneous character. In the political field, Horace Greeley stares you in the face wherever you go. His spherical countenance hangs suspended across our principal thoroughfares; it smiles upon you from dead walls and dilapidated fences; it is made to do duty in scenes in burlesque theatricals; it is a prominent feature in illustrated papers, and in almost every conceivable shape, Horace, the son of his father, and the author of the farmer's own book, as it were, looms up before you. If the city of New York only had the making of our presidents, Horace would be "it" in a jiffey. Infantile children cry for Horace Greeley, and swallow him in preference to castor oil; stern parents frighten unruly urchins by threatening them with the vengeance of Horace Greeley. Young ladies flirt with Greeley fans, and office seekers look forward to him as the hope of the nation and their own salvation. If Greeley should fail to be "it" when the November elections shall have been held, what a fearful reaction there will be, and how the woodpecker of Chappaqua will be rolled down hill.....Amusements are doing fairly, but will do better when the returned refugees shall have got off their sea legs, and settled down once more to life in the city.....Let us beguile the happy hours away by composing a few rhymes illustrative of

THE BEAUTIES OF THE SEASON.

Hark! the "Bells" are ringing,
We hear the noses ascend,
While other belles are singing
In notes that blithely blend;
The belles we rather cling to
Are the belles upon the boards,
Though they that pianos sing to
May well charm creation's lords.
There's pretty Nellie Thompson,
Who all our swells agree
Is worthy being mated—
If she isn't, ought to be;
And charming Rosa Morse,
Who, from all that we've heard say,
Each playgoer should both hear and see,
And that, too, right away.
There's Aimee, too, is coming,
And Lucca, pert and spry,
We think we hear her humming
"Casta Diva" on the sky;
And there is Agnes Ethel,
Who's to act upon the "Square,"
She brings from London one fresh play,
That can't be seen elsewhere.
The Thompson's still careering,
Spirit full of mirth and glee,
And Clara Louise Kellogg,
Whose won praise be'yond the sea,
With many other claimants
For the public ear and eye,
All pretty apruce and witty,
Who'll for your favors vie.
Then your choicest bib and tucker
Prepare ye to put on,
For sure the season is a pucker,
And the season is begun.

.....A self-styled comical man took us completely by surprise the other evening, when he asked if we heard about a well known Wall street broker making such a sensation at Bryant's Minstrels. "No!" was our surprised ejaculation; "who and what was it?" "Why, everybody's talking about it; greatest hit of the season. Mr. Bryant put a new piece on the stage, and Daniel Drew!" Now, do you see anything very funny about that? And yet that inflated demagogue walked away laughing as if he should die.....You are never certain of the company you are in. If you go to see a prize fight, the immaculate dal'ies warn you against pickpockets; if you visit a race track, the same conservators of the public morals caution you to beware of thieves, etc., but they fail in their duty to the people by observing a strict silence when referring to pious assemblages and gatherings of the unadulterated faithful. It was only last Sabbath evening, when a number of our actors, being off duty "for that night only," went to hear the word expounded at one of our up-town fashionable churches, whose fall and winter season had just commenced. They heard many palpable truths uttered by the well-dressed and eloquent preacher, but when church was out, and they proposed to enjoy a quiet sip of something at a neighboring hostelrie, they found that some pious thief had despoiled them of their pocket books, and they reminded us very much of the best men in base ball nines, seeing that they were picked players.

.....They must have some very distressing music in that country where Horace Greeley sends people to emigrate to, "out west," for at South Bend, Indiana, a couple, who have just recovered from a severe illness, return thanks to the cornet band "for their kindness in discontinuing their practice during our illness." It seems to have been a case of life or death—life and the pursuit of happiness it the musicians stopped playing; death, and we don't know what else, if "the band began to play." This is a fearful state of affairs.....A fiery, untamed correspondent wants to know whether we don't "think the 'King Carrot' a small potatoe or a dead beet." This is a land of freedom; Manager Daly merely offers you the "Carrot"—he doesn't compel you to swallow it as such—if you prefer small potatoes, he has no objection; every man to his taste.....Gentlemen in places of amusement who go out between acts to see a man have turned up unusually numerous thus early in the season. The base insinuation of some desperate cannibal that they go out to get a drink of rum is a gross libel; many of them retire to get their corns pared.....Amy Sheridan, with Lydia Thompson's troupe, makes a tall Venus, but Markham is the more spirituelle of the two. Amy looks as if Venus had risen from the bath with one leg only.....Show bill printing is making rapid progress in this country, some beautiful specimens in colors attracting the attention of passers by on our main thoroughfares. Performers and managers are beginning to appreciate this means of making public their intentions, and the several establishments engaged in getting up this sort of work are kept pretty busy. After advertising in the CLIPPER, show men should make a call upon our pictorial show bill printers. Some black letters used by the author for the street announcement of a star, but now all the colors of the rainbow are scarce sufficient to do him honor. He is now billed in illuminated posters that form quite a picture gallery.

NOW AND THEN.

In times when posters huge were not with choice expletives interlarded,
The player made best terms he could, and then he simply was "placarded."
But now old terms are done away, and new ones from new writers hooked,
And in a double sense we greet him, for lo! he is both "billed" and "booked."

.....In view of an early appearance of the imported opera singers isn't it about time that empressarios and agen's were starting those fabulous stories for which they are so noted when introducing their stars to American notice? We are easily gulled in this country, and we are just ripe for any freshly manufactured yarn concerning the coming artists. Think it over Messrs. opera managers, and peace be with thee.....The statement of our last that Mr. Barnum has secured, permanently, the Hippotheatron, in Fourteenth street, is doubted by a farseeing correspondent, who says "its only Lent." We see the germ of a tender joke in our friend's little squib, and shall not undertake to go further into the matter.....In these days of excitement and sensationalism, there is a fortune for any man who will go up in a balloon, and at an altitude of one mile, drop from the aerial ship, turn three backward somersaults, and alight without injury. This is a feat that has never yet been successfully performed, and there's money in it.....Talking about surprising feats and astonishing sensations, reminds us of a little story, a joke, or something in the way of an unrehearsed stage effect that may cause a smile to appear where only grief held sway before, probably. The new theatre in, let us say, Squedunk (the old Indian name for Newark—see Transactions New Jersey Historical Society), was in its first season, an unprecedented "galaxy of talent" having been engaged to give it eclat. Among the stars on the list was a certain Pomponius Ego, who was remarkable for the attention which he paid to accessories. In his opening effort, which was in a high pressure play of the "Vampire" order, it became necessary to use a plain deal chest, in which the author had charitably intended to deposit a leading character—a rival to the hero. Being short of carpenters, recourse was had to a firm of industrious chips hard by, who engaged to have the box delivered on the following evening in time for performance. Close upon receipt of this came an order from an undertaker for a box similar in size, who was himself to attend to the packing. At the proper time, a box was duly dispatched to the theatre and placed in position upon the stage, but no one thought of looking into it, and the key remained unturned in the lock until the moment when it was required for use. The cue was given and Pomponius proceeded with his lines:—

Behold this chest! For long years it has lain
Neglected 'mid the parrot's household wreck.
See, it is deep and broad. When midnight comes,
Let the wan corpse within the chest be laid.
Pack it with stones, and to your river depth
Consign the corpse of him I most did hate, &c.

At the words he overturned the box, which seemed to him somewhat heavy, and raised the lid, when, to his horror, out tumbled into full view an actual corpse! The ignorant bearers, being the worse for liquor, had got hold of the wrong chest, and thus unwittingly contributed a new sensation. Out of respect to the feelings of this unfortunate actor, we drop the curtain.

City Summary.

THE FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE was opened for the regular season on Tuesday evening, Sept. 3d, with "Diamonds," announced upon the bills as an "original comedy in five acts, of local and contemporaneous interest," by Mr. Bronson Howard. The comedy it is not, neither is it strictly original, for ideas have been borrowed from other plays, particularly "Married Life." It cannot be called a picture of our best society, for the persons, as represented upon the stage, would not be tolerated in such circles. The dialogue is, at times, inane and puerile; although interspersed with lines which create laughter, yet they are far from being witty. It is made up of broad farce, touches of tragedy, and much babble and small talk. As a matter of record we append the cast:—

Hamilton Wykoff..Henry Crisp	William.....Mr. Carroll
Reddington.....G. H. Rockwell	Coachman.....Mr. Beekman
Percival Jarvis..George Clarke	Dish Stand.....G. Godfrey
Dr. Schutzleworth..W. Davidge	Nelly Wykoff..Fanny Davenport
Truesdell.....E. T. Kingsold	Mrs. Cornelia Vandycke.....
Jerome Skidmore..G. H. Griffiths	Fanny Morant
Todd.....James Lewis	Herminia.....Clara Morris
Uncle Ned.....W. J. Lemoyne	Mabel Wykoff.....Sara Jewett
Judge Cortlieu.....D. Whiting	The Todd.....Mrs. G. H. Gilbert
'Enery Thomas..Owen Fawcett	Mrs. Jerome Skidmore.....
Flunkett.....J. H. Burnett	Nelly Mortimer
Bachus.....K. Pierce	Mrs. Flunkett..Georgie Langley
Olyphant.....Mr. Griffiths	Mrs. Bachus.....Miss Griffiths

The scene is laid partly in this city and partly on Staten Island, and the time of the action is the present. It is elaborately mounted, with freshly painted sceneries from the pencil of Mr. James Roberts, which give evidence of that gentleman's great proficiency in his art. The stage appointments are rich and elegant, for Mr. Daly has spared no expense in giving the piece an elaborate setting. The bright colors and elegant taste of the ladies' costumes add brilliancy to the scene, and they, as well as most of those worn by the gentlemen, are changed every act. The plot is very slight, and may be told as follows:—

A young couple—Hamilton and Mabel Wykoff—moving in our best society, recently married, have invited a number of their friends to their residence. The ladies of this coterie do little else than counsel the young wife to disobey her husband. She permits and receives the attentions of a former lover, Reddington, and when matters have progressed too far for her own peace of mind, she warns her husband, who has become indifferent to her, by means of an anonymous note, to beware of his friend, the former lover, by an accident a letter written by Percival Jarvis to Nelly Wykoff, without superscription, falls into the hands of the husband, Hamilton Wykoff, who casts off his wife and starts in pursuit of Percival Jarvis, whom he meets and shoots with a pistol at a fashionable club in New York city, and the scene is so arranged that the Fisk, Jr., assassination is vividly brought to mind. We may digress in order to state that in this scene, which is a representation of a fashionable club in this city, her most distinguished citizens are represented continually drinking liquor, and to while away the hours they organize and enact a "Judge and Jury" trial. Percival Jarvis recovers, everything is satisfactorily explained, Reddington is kicked in his true colors, and Hamilton Wykoff and his wife are reconciled.

But few of the characters have any scope for acting, the balance being simply required to dress well and utter in a conventional manner the platitudes assigned them. Henry Crisp gave an effective impersonation of Hamilton Wykoff, although at times he was a little stagey. C. H. Rockwell, who made his first appearance at this theatre, performed conscientiously the character of Reddington. Percival Jarvis was acted with much vigor and naturalness by Mr. George Clarke, who has re-appeared after two years' absence. Miss Sara Jewett, a pupil of Miss Fanny Morant's, we believe, who made her debut as a professional actress, was apparently self-possessed as Mabel Wykoff. She has a pleasing appearance, a good voice, is intelligent and lady-like, and in the only scene which gave any real opportunity for the display of dramatic power, evinced that many of the qualities which need only the ripening influence of study and practice to make her a desirable acquisition to the dramatic profession. As a debutante her success was pronounced, and reflects much credit upon her preceptress. These were the only persons connected directly with the plot. The others strolled in at random, and uttered what was supposed to be the small talk of society. Mr. Davidge, as Dr. Schutzleworth, a wiser man who had been twice married, and was now pursued and finally captured in the matrimonial net by Mrs. Cornelia Vandycke, was natural and artistic, as may be said of his captor's representative, Miss Fanny Morant. The Todd, a strong minded woman, and her hen-pecked husband, Mr. Todd, were excellently acted by Mrs. G. H. Gilbert and James Lewis respectively, and elicited the only audible laughter they created much mirth, though the characters were by no means worthy of their artistic abilities. G. H. Griffiths strived to do his best with the somewhat hazily drawn character of Jerome Skidmore. W. J. Lemoyne gave an effective impersonation of Uncle Ned, an old negro servant, although the character was somewhat of a bore. D. Whiting lent dignity to the character of Judge Cortlieu, the club waiter. Owen Fawcett was quite successful in his impersonation of the Henglish servant, 'Enery Thomas, and the only regret was that his part was so brief. Mr. Barney, in the brief part of Olyphant, displayed unmistakable talent in embryo. J. H. Burnett as Flunkett, E. Pierce as Bachus, loungers in fashionable resorts, performed their brief parts creditably. Mr. Beekman as the coachman, and G. Godfrey as the club servant, were correct. Two school girls, Nelly Wykoff and Herminia, were impersonated by Fanny Davenport and Clara Morris, as well as could be expected, as nothing like either character was ever seen in life. The Misses Nelly Mortimer, Georgie Langley and Griffiths evinced care and attention with the small parts assigned them. The audiences since the opening have been large.

D. C. ANDERSON has returned from England, looking much improved in bodily health.

MR. AND MRS. DION BOUCICAULT, Miss Geraldine Stuart and Mr. C. Alexander, who are to play at Booth's; W. J. Florence and George C. Boniface, arrived from Europe during the past week.

MR. NAUENDORF, late of a partner of Carl Rosa's, it is rumored, has leased the Tammany Theatre, in East Fourteenth street, formerly occupied by Bryant's Minstrels, and will commence a season of German Opera there on or about Oct. 8th.

SIGNOR MARIO, the renowned tenor, arrived in this city Sept. 3d. He made his first appearance in this city at Castle Garden, in Giulia Grisi's farewell, opening in Lucrezia Borgia," on Sept. 4th, 1854. When the Academy of Music was first opened, on Oct. 2d, of that year, those artists sang in "Norma." Both of those places of amusement at that time were under the management of the late J. H. Hackett.

CHARLES MCEVOY'S NEW HIBERNICON is to be exhibited at Harlem during the present week. Miss Minnie Stewart, serio-comic vocalist, recently joined the show in New Jersey.

A SENSATIONAL MELO-DRAMA entitled "The Red Pocket Book" was acted for the first time in this city at the Olympic Theatre, on the evening of Sept. 2d, and was continued throughout the week. As a sketch of its plot was given in a recent issue of its production in San Francisco, Cal., some months since, we have no need to rehearse it here. It was well mounted, considerable fresh scenery having been painted therefor, among which we may especially commend that representing the coast of Africa, in the second act, and Kerveguen's mansion, in the fourth act. The sensation of the drama consists of the representation of the ship rigged ship as we saw, San Francisco, in the act of being burned at the moment. The destruction of a part of the drama occurring upon its deck, its subsequently taking fire, the magazine exploding and the ship sinking beneath the waves whilst the passengers escape upon a raft. This scene occupies an entire act; during the early part of the week the machinery did not work satisfactorily, but towards the latter part a more creditable affair was presented, and in time this scene was quite realistic. However, we think it would have been much more effective had the action taken place in the cabin of the vessel, and been transferred to the deck just previous to the ship's sinking. The drama is of the old fashioned school, the hero being almost killed, at all events left insensible, at the end of nearly every act, but finally up and right, as the curtain falls, and relates the manner in which such miracles have been accomplished. Much of the dialogue might be advantageously curtailed, and in short, if the incidents were re-arranged and the dialogue partially re-written, it would prove more effective. The acting was not entirely satisfactory, possibly the result of hastily bringing together a number of artists strange to each other. H. Neil Warner acted the hero, Maurice, in a bold, vigorous manner, with well modulated elocution and a degree of naturalness that closely enlisted the sympathies of the audience, who testified their approbation by frequent applause. J. E. Nagle, as the villain, De Folbert, deserves commendation for a correct conception and embodiment of that character. Harry Bryne was suffering during the week from severe hoarseness, which marred his impersonation of Admiral Kerveguen. Mr. A. Kennedy played the brief part of Durome, a banker, who is assassinated in the prologue, satisfactorily, as did Edwin Coleman, Faustin, his servant. Harry Hotto invested Marcel with much comicality, although much of the language used in his "gags" would not have been understood at the period of the action of the drama. Miss Laura L. Phillips (who has grown somewhat stout since she last appeared in this city), as Helene, evinced the possession of considerable histrionic ability, accomplished her effects naturally, and costumed the character with taste. Miss Ida Vernon, as M'me de Lawney, Helene's aunt, had but little to do, yet was quiet and natural. Mrs. Brutone, as the bustling domestic, merits praise. These were the only characters deserving notice. The attendance was not large at any time during the week. The drama is announced for continued representation.

F. S. CHANFRAU closed one of the most successful engagements ever played by him in this city, at Wood's Museum, on Saturday evening, Sept. 7th, having acted during the past week at the evening performances and Saturday matinee on "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler." He received a benefit on Friday, when on that and the following evening—in addition to the above named drama—he appeared as Jerry Clip in a scene from "The Widow's Victim," in which he gave imitations of celebrated actors of the past and present time. So truthful were these, that if the auditor was to close his eyes he could not, we think, but believe that the person imitated was speaking before him. At the usual matinee performances "The Lady of Lyons" was acted. This evening, Sept. 9th, a new burlesque, entitled "Chow-Chow; or, a Tale of Pekin," is to be produced.

J. W. WALLACK has continued his impersonation of Mathias, in "The Bells," at Booth's Theatre, during the week just closed, to good business. The present will be the last week of his engagement.

NO CHANGE was found necessary in the opening programme at Bryant's Minstrels for the second week of their season. Wash. Norton, however, did not appear during the week, he having obtained a congé of two weeks to fulfil an engagement, made prior to the commencement of the season, at Chicago, Ill. The performances gave satisfaction, and no falling off was observed in the attendance.

LARGE AUDIENCES have been in attendance, since our last report, at the Grand Opera House. "Le Roi Carotte" is now acted more smoothly and compactly. The curtain rises at a quarter to eight o'clock precisely, and the performances terminate at about eleven. A matinee performance of the spectacle was given on Sept. 7th.

A VERY ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME was presented at Charley White's Athenæum on Sept. 2d, and continued throughout the week, attracting a good average attendance. The first part was made up of fresh selections, among which, "What Shall He Have Who Killed the Deer?" sung by the double quartet, was received with great favor, as were likewise "Little Robin, Tell Kitty I'm Coming," by Charles Henry, and the comic ditty, "Sift Sand Sal," by Luke Schoolcraft. Two fresh sketches in the olio, entitled "That Dorg," a burlesque tragedy by J. C. Stewart, and "Scenes on the Mississippi," gave much satisfaction, the representation of southern darkey life in the latter, by Charley White, aided by the principal members of the company, being truly life-like. McKee and Rogers performed an original sensation act called "Lucinda," which was fully up to their standard of excellence. Matinees are given on Wednesdays only. Bartholomew and Maffit, pantomimists, likewise Ricardo, a noted Ethiopian vocalist and prima donna, will be added to the company on Sept. 9th.

SOME FEW CHANGES were made in the programme at the San Francisco Minstrels, performing at the St. James Theatre, during the week just closed, and those were confined to the first part. C. S. Fredericks sang "Meet Me With a Kiss;" Sam Wambold, "The Day When You'll Forget Me," and Billy Birch revived the old popular comic song of "Old Grimes' Cellar Door," all of which met with favor, as did the remainder of the programme. The attendance has kept fully up to the standard of the opening.

JOHN HART AND THE DEVERE BROTHERS were the additions to the company at the Theatre Comique on Sept. 2d. The former, a well known Ethiopian comedian, was rapturously received, and performed prominent characters in a couple of sketches with his accustomed unctuous humor. William Devere performed an eccentric song and dance, and later in the evening, in conjunction with his brother, a statue clog, both of which drew forth much applause. The members of the company in their various specialties filled out a pleasing programme, which coincided with an original dramatic sketch, by J. F. Poole, entitled "Around Town; or, Sights of the City." Miss Annie Adams, serio-comic vocalist, is to commence an engagement on Sept. 9th.

"YANKEE" LOCKE commenced an engagement at the Bowery Theatre on Sept. 2d, acting in Fred. Marsden's dramatization of W. R. Thomes' novel of the "Bushrangers," entitled "Trumps; or, High, Low, Jack and the Game," which was continued throughout the week. As the drama has been often reviewed by our correspondents when produced in other cities, we need only remark that the acting of Mr. Locke and the supporting company was good and pleased the audiences. The farce entitled "Smith and Brown" preceded the drama on the first four evenings of the week, and on Friday, for Mr. Locke's benefit, the comic drama of "Sam Patch in France" and the farce of "Our Neighbors" were acted in conjunction therewith, which programme was repeated on Saturday evening, with which performances the engagement of Mr. Locke terminated. This evening, Sept. 9th, the last week of the summer season will be inaugurated, when Mr. George Howard, a tragedian from England, will make his American debut in the character of Beverley, in the well known tragedy of "The Gamester."

THE MISSES JENNIE WESTON, Nellie Stanwood, Ada Frost, Messrs. Jim Budworth, George S. Morris, A. J. Talbot and Harry Stanwood have arrived in town, and are stopping at the St. Charles Hotel.

E. W. WALCOTT sailed for Europe on Sept. 7th. He goes abroad in the interest of P. T. Barnum, to secure novelties for the Hippotheatron.

THE UNION SQUARE THEATRE will be re-opened on Sept. 17th, as a comedy theatre, Miss Agnes Ethel appearing in a new play, written for her by Victorien Sardou, entitled, "Agnes." In addition to Miss Ethel, whose engagement is limited to one hundred nights, the company will include the following ladies and gentlemen:—Mrs. Clara Jennings, the Misses Plessy Mordaunt, Phillis Glover, Emily Mestayer, Kitty Blanchard, Jennie Lee, Mary Griswold, Fannie Hayward, Rose Laurens, Imogene Fowler, Kate Holland, Charlotte Cave, Harriet Thorpe, Messrs. Mark Smith, F. F. Mackay, Edward Lamb, Mc. Rae Ranken, Henry Montgomery, George Parks, W. B. Laurens, Welsh Edwards, J. P. Burnett, Claude Burroughs, J. W. Wilder, J. Lamb, W. Stuart, J. Quigley, D. H. Harkins, stage manager; E. H. Gouge, treasurer; H. Tissington, musical director; J. W. Thorpe, prompter; Richard Marston, scenic artist; William Saunders, machinist. During the recess the house has been renovated and repaired, and new scenery, furniture, properties and appointments have been added. Mr. A. M. Palmer will act as manager.

A COMMUNICATION from young George Holland, in reference to "The Tombs of Actors," recently published in the CLIPPER, is in type, but is crowded out by the pressure of advertisements. It will be given in our next.

LOUISE SYDNEY PINCHARD, a vocalist, has been favorably noticed by the London, Eng., press, will play an engagement at the Bowery Theatre, commencing Oct. 28th, when her own play, "Auramania," will be produced.

COL. T. A. BROWN, dramatic agent, 718 Broadway, is authorized to dispose of several of Laura Keene's copyrighted plays, a list of which he publishes, and he wants first class variety talent for Boston and Louisville, and a first class agent manager. He is also prepared to negotiate engagements for Blanche Selwyn, character vocalist; the Claire Sisters, contortionists and vocalists; Maffit and Bartholomew, pantomimists, and Mahr and McGinness, double clog, song and dance, and single essence performers. For further particulars see cards in another column.

EMERSON'S CALIFORNIA MINSTRELS commenced a season at 720 Broadway, on Monday evening, Sept. 9d. There were sixteen people in the first part, consisting of Billy Emerson on the tambo end; Ben Cotton, bones; J. A. Palmer, interlocutor; a quartet of vocalists and the performers upon the following instruments:—Three violins, a clarionet, flute, cornet, trombone, snare drum and double bass. After the introductory overture the opening programme with the "Grand Tournament"—was effectively sung by the vocal corps. John Frazer's singing of "I'll be True to Thee" drew forth deserved applause. Ben Cotton's comical singing of "Hannah! How's Your Ma?" was encored. J. A. Palmer, who has a baritone voice of much power and sweetness, won lavish applause by his excellent singing of "When the Moon with Glory Brightens." Billy Emerson sang "When My Beer Begins to Play," and between the verses introduced much extravagant action in imitating a conductor of an orchestra. His performances were re-demanded and he acceded. Monroe Dempster sang acceptably "Annie o' the Banks O'Dee," and the finale consisted of a medley of songs, among which we "Sabre de mon Pere" was excellently sung by the male soprano, Charles Heywood. The witticisms of the first part were mostly fresh and enjoyable. Among these Billy Emerson introduced a novel idea. First telling a story that a number of persons, traveling in a railroad car, to relieve the monotomy of the journey, agreed that each one should sing a verse of a song; he then acted the scene, impersonating a fussy dry goods clerk, a stalwart Irish rough, a portly watchman, and an elderly man of some three score years of age. The various dialects, both while singing and speaking, were well portrayed, and his simulation of old age took the audience by surprise. Each impersonation was lavishly applauded. Mr. Emerson may be regarded as one of the best end men in the country, and those who had hitherto seen him only in songs and dances could form no idea of his great and varied abilities. Later in the evening, when he performed several songs and dances, he failed to arouse much enthusiasm, not for the reason of lack of ability, but chiefly because that his selections were old, and that branch of the business has been so well worn, and lacks novelty, that it often rather than advances the auditor. So excellent a comedian as Mr. Emerson can now afford to give up a department of the profession in which years since he ranked among the first. In the olio, Harry Stanwood's songs, with banjo accompaniment, were well received, and the witticisms with which they were interspersed were original and created much laughter. Sheridan and Mack, in their character sketch, have made rapid strides towards excellence since they last appeared here. Their personation of the aged couple in "Look on the Bright Side" approximates well nigh unto perfection, as the loud and long continued applause of the audience testified. After an almost instantaneous change of costume, they bounded on the mimic scene as a boy and girl, and illustrated "Playing Hookey," which, although well performed, did not equal the latter evidence of their effort. "Little Fraud" was next given, and in a style of excellence, both as regards make-up, singing and acting, that we have seldom seen equaled. They were twice recalled, and, the applause continuing, they gave a single verse of a Dutch duet, which met with favor. As a sketch entitled "The Old Clothes Dealer" afforded Billy Emerson an excellent opportunity for character acting, which he fully improved and gave further evidence of his versatility by his excellent imitation of a Jew clothes dealer. An operatic sketch called "Ill-Tron-Bad-Door" afforded Charles Heywood an opportunity to imitate a prima donna, in which, both in acting and singing, he proved successful. He received efficient support from Monroe Dempster, Al Manrico; J. A. Palmer, as Count di Luna, whilst other members of the company filled acceptably the other characters. The business of the week was excellent, and the prospects for a successful season are apparently good. T. Maguire and Billy Emerson are the proprietors and managers, and Palmer is director of amusements, and J. S. Cox musical director.

SHIRL BARRY, who is to play Michael Feeny in "Arrah-na-Pogue" at Booth's Theatre during the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault, and afterwards travel with them through the country, arrived from England during the past week.

Miss ROSE COGHLAN made her American debut at Wallack's Theatre on Sept. 2d, acting the character of Mrs. Honeyton in the comedietta entitled "A Happy Pair," supported by Mr. Edmund Leathes, from San Francisco, Cal., who made his first appearance at that theatre in the character of Mr. Honeyton. Miss Coghlan is of medium height, has a well rounded form, a pretty face, was costumed in good taste, and displayed considerable dramatic ability in the impersonation of that role. It was evident that Mr. Leathes had bestowed some thoughtful study upon the character assigned him, and that he had learned his art in a good school. Both were called before the curtain at the conclusion of the comedietta to receive the approbation of the audience. The burlesque of "Ixion," which was afterwards performed by the Lydia Thompson burlesque troupe, was mounted with freshly painted sceneries of a more elaborate and magnificent character than had hitherto been seen in such connection in this city. The costumes were likewise fresh and bright in color. Miss Lydia Thompson acted Ixion with all the freshness, archness and vivacity which characterized her original impersonation of that role in this country. Miss Rose Coghlan acted Jupiter charmingly, and was costumed with much taste. Miss Eliza Weathersby's impersonation of Mercury was effective, and during the evening she was several times encored for her excellent singing. Miss Carlotta Zurbini, with her sparkling eyes, jet black hair and pretty figure, presented a pleasing portraiture of Juno. Miss Amy Sheridan displayed but little ability in her impersonation of Venus, and the height of her tall figure was apparently enhanced by the costume she wore. Miss Camille Dubois made a charming Cupid, and her singing was much admired. Harry Beckett's Minerva was invested with all its old time grotesqueness and humor, which kept the audience in the best of spirits. Willie Edouin was satisfactory as Gannymede, and during the performance found many opportunities to introduce little bits of original business, which created much merriment. Miss Tilly Earl deserves a word of praise for the care she bestowed upon Apollo, as does Miss Leslie for her excellent dancing. There was nothing in the acting of the minor parts to disturb the harmony of the whole picture. Both pieces were repeated during the week in the presence of good sized audiences. "Ixion" was acted at the Saturday matinee, and "Kenilworth" is announced as being in active preparation.

P. T. BARNUM, having bought Lent's circus building in 14th street, is lowering the ring so as to be able to add a balcony that will seat one thousand additional persons. He is also enlarging and decorating the whole, placing iron armchairs throughout the entire auditorium, and fitting up all vacant space on the entire lot, 100x125 feet, for the accommodation of his museum and menagerie. We understand that Mr. Barnum has despatched an agent to Europe for equestrian and other talent, curiosities, &c., and intends to open on Monday, Nov. 11th, placing his entire show at a single price of admission. It will be open day and evening, and performances will be given every afternoon and evening.

IT HAS BEEN DEFINITELY SETTLED that Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault's engagement at Booth's Theatre will commence Sept. 16th. "Arrah-na-Pogue" will be the first attraction, Dion Boucicault acting Shaan the Post for the first time in America.

PROF. R. RISLEY announces, through an advertisement, that he is about to establish a dramatic agency in this city and Philadelphia, Pa.

THE YOKES FAMILY, with their manager, Wardle Corbyn, sailed for England on the 4th inst. They will probably return to this country next spring.

Dramatic.

To Managers, Agents, Doorkeepers and Others.

To every authorized correspondent of the NEW YORK CLIPPER we have issued a card of a LEMON YELLOW COLOR, with an engraving of the CLIPPER building on one side, and on the other the name of the correspondent, city, etc., signed by the proprietor of the paper, with the stamp of the office and date of Sept. 1st, 1872, affixed thereunto, each card running for six months. No person is authorized to use any other card, and all showmen are requested not to recognize or extend favors to any person unless he can produce a card like the above. Though the past season many managers have been defrauded and imposed upon by persons presenting an ordinary visiting card, bearing, in addition to their names, the words "Regularly authorized correspondent of the NEW YORK CLIPPER," and gave as an excuse for so doing that they had left their regular card at home. Our correspondents are requested never to use such cards, never to ask favors without showing their regular cards, and managers will save themselves from being imposed upon by refusing all but the regular card. All cards of other colors previously issued are hereby revoked. Correspondents are requested to make their favors as brief as possible, as we have but little space for voluminous reports. Parties supplying for the position of correspondent are respectfully requested to consider silence a negative.

ARRANGEMENTS IN CHICAGO, Ill., are thus reported by our correspondent, under date of Sept. 8th:—The regular fall and winter season at McVic sons which she has sung of late. Miss Olivia Rand looked charming and played her part acceptably. B. C. Smith as Pointer, F. Meimer as Crumpets, and Y. Kilbourne as Area Jack, were satisfactory. During the performance, Messrs. Baker and Farron introduced their excellent and highly diverting Teutonic specialties, and a number of dances were presented by Mlle. Lamardi, the Holt sisters, Miss Emma Miles, Mlle. Vincent and the Francisco sisters. 'After Dark' was performed every night in the week and at the Wednesday matinee; on Saturday afternoon 'The Gunmaker of Moscow' was given, and the same piece in addition to 'After Dark' on Saturday night. On Sept. 9th, an entirely new drama by Dr. Walden, entitled 'War Clouds,' will be produced here.....Ford's Grand Opera House will be opened on Sept. 9th, with the New Orleans Varieties Comedy Company as the attraction."

R. M., an experienced business manager, who can be addressed care of this office, desires an engagement with a dramatic star or company.

THE NEW YORK CITY COMBINATION COMPANY, which includes the Misses Edith Bland and Charlotte Stanley, are to commence a week's season at Bloomington, Ill., on Sept. 9th.

"WOOING AND WEDDING; OR, LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP," was announced for the opening bill at the Academy of Music, Cleveland, O., Saturday afternoon, Sept. 7th, to be repeated in the evening, with the following cast:—Mr. Oddington, Mr. J. C. Curran; Mr. Brandon, Harold Forsberg; Mr. Rashleigh, L. F. Barrett; Mr. Hardman, Geo. O. Morris; Mr. De Vere, Chas. Jordan; Jack Spriggs, W. H. Seymour; Tom Tilly, John Ogden; Servant, Mr. Davenport; Clarissa Oddington, Miss Laura Don; Miss Brown, Mrs. Isabella Phillips; Elinor Mortimer, Mrs. Estelle Potter; Mary Oddington, Mrs. Chas. Jordan; Fanny Hardman, Miss Effie E. Elsler; Mrs. Noggs, Miss Louisa W. Lyle. This season, we are informed, the management intend to give two matinees each week, Wednesdays and Saturdays, instead of one, as heretofore.

MANAGERS and others in Kansas, Colorado, and the extreme west, are referred to Fred. G. Maeder's card in another column, relating to a stolen copy of "Buffalo Bill," which he believes was taken with the intention of producing it under the title of "Wild Bill."

Musical.

THE FRAE FAMILY BELL RINGERS will be at St. Joe, Mich., on the 9th inst., and go thence up into the Lake Superior country.

THE BERGER FAMILY BELL RINGERS intend visiting Cuba and Mexico during the coming season. A concert on a grand scale will be given by them at Jackson, Mich., previous to starting on their next tour.

SMITH'S SWISS BELL RINGERS performed at Sandwich, Ill., Sept. 4th; Aurora, 7th, and remain there the 9th, thence to Naperville, 10th. The following is a list of the company:—Prof. W. L. Smith, tenor vocalist, staff and table bell player, also cornetist; Charlie Harrison, comic delineator and mimic; Mrs. W. L. Smith, soprano; Etta Morgan, character vocalist; Alice Armstrong, vocalist, and H. B. Ives, baritone. The business agent is Ed. C. Beach.

THE ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY, under the direction of John Templeton, opened at Masonic Temple, Louisville, Ky., on the 2d inst., and will remain throughout the week. The audiences have not been large. The orchestra is too small. "The Bohemian Girl" was the principal opera presented, with Lelia Ellis, as Arline; T. Whiffin, as Thadeus; Blanche Galton, as the Queen, and "The Sappho," as Florestein. They open in Lexington on the 9th, from there to Frankfort. So wrote our correspondent on Sept. 6th.

A LADY PIANIST is advertised for by "Manager" for a first-class entertainment.

A BRILLIANT AUDIENCE was drawn to Pacific Hall, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 29th, to hear Miss Anna Mehlig in pianoforte recital, supported by an orchestra of thirty-six performers. The selections were Weber's Polonaise in E, the overture to Martha, and the Wedding March, Fred. Lyster's national ode, "The Blue and the Gray," was sung with fine sentiment by the pleasing English tenor, Mr. Vernon Lincoln. On Aug. 31st., Miss Mehlig was to give a farewell matinee recital at Platt's Hall. This superb artiste has drawn enthusiastic audiences all through California, and will carry away evidence of her great professional success in the convincing form of golden shekels.....The subscription books were opened on Aug. 29th for the season of opera by the Bianchi Troupe. It is said the chorus have been rehearsing for the last two months. Great preparation is being made for the production of "Norma," which will be the initial opera. The season takes place at the Metropolitan Theatre within a month.

THE list of the series of concerts at Hassler's Garden, Philadelphia, was given on the evening of the 7th inst. Mr. Mark Hassler, the manager, received a complimentary benefit on the 6th inst., on which occasion solos were rendered by Messrs. E. Lefebre, Stratford, Ewers, Green and Butler.

CONCERT HALL, Philadelphia, was re-opened for the fall season at the 5th inst., when Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard and Messrs. Pierre Bernard, H. Stewardson and Frank Gilder appeared in a popular concert. The attendance was large.

THE CONCERTS at the Mennerchor Garden, Philadelphia, continue to be largely attended. On the 4th inst. Mr. Carl Sentz, the originator of the open air concerts in that city, received a complimentary benefit, which was largely attended. The Philadelphia Horn Quartet and the Young Mennerchor Chorus volunteered their services, and an attractive programme was rendered by Carl Sentz's orchestra. Mme. D'Auria will have a benefit on the evening of the 10th inst., and Mr. H. Torchiani, the business agent, will also appear for the patronage of his friends on the 13th inst., this being the closing week of the season, which has been very successful.

DELFIELD & ALLEN'S song and dance, "While sitting at the Window," can be had of Johnny Delfield, who advertises.

A CORNET PLAYER is wanted by Hi Henri, whose address find in another column.

Kirby, stage manager; Geo. Thompson, Frank Lynch, Amile Perisaine, Wm. Bronson, the Misses Lottie Kirby, Emily Tremont, Maggie Prescott, Lottie Aron, Kittie Davenport, Merrie and Alice Morgan.....At the Crystal Palace Varieties, Julius Socha, manager; James Johnson, stage manager; Little General, Willie Hamilton, Tommie Benton, Miss Carrie Bentley and Miss Jennie Miller.

J. W. BERKLEY of Baltimore, Md., was married at Wichiti, Kansas, on Aug. 25th, to Miss Laura Metzger, of Chicago, Ill., professionally known as Miss Maud Louis.

THE LAMCHLLS BROTHERS and Mons. Deverney, acrobats and gymnasts, are giving occasional performances at South Side Park, Milwaukee, Wis.

THE NEW FACES at Sinn's Front Street Theatre Comique, Baltimore, Md., on Sept. 2d, were Miss Hattie Engel, fancy dancer; Mons. V. Langlois, who performed a difficult act upon the tight wire, and Messrs. Hewitt, Hinds and Young, whose feats of gymnasia, whilst perilous and thrilling, were executed with coolness and precision. The other points of interest in the programme were Charley Reynolds' excellent negro delineations; clogs, songs and dances by Healy and Conway and Miss Ella Saunders; wonderful feats by the Egyptian juggiers; Sam Devere's Ethiopian and Teutonic specialties; "The Active Boy" by Cincinnatus; burlesque changes, a la Miliburn, by John Pendy; Miss Lillie Hall's songs and dances; Miss Dora Dawron's double-voiced singing; vocal selections by Miss Rosa Lee; Little Alberta's specialities; a couple of ballets, neatly rendered by M'lle de Rose and the corps de ballet, and an afterpiece entitled "The King and the Freebooter." Business has been quite good. The Romellis, Iona Lang and E. Collier are underlined.....The attendance at the Opera House has been fair. The fresh arrivals on the 2d were Mr. W. J. Thompson, actor and author; Toney Harvey, negro comedian; Miss Julia May, vocal-change artist; the Misses Kate Barrows and Claudia Wesdercs, danseuse, and Miss Millie Welch, general performer. Frank Howe and Julia May rendered the vocal sketch "Schneider's Courtship" in a very commendable style. A grotesque ballet, satirizing the girls of the period, arranged by Mons. Cardell, was well rendered by the Gorenno sisters, Belle Graham, Kate Barrows, Claudia Walters, Mollie Welch, Marion de Cure and Emma Gertrude. The entertainment terminated with a nautical drama called "Neptune's Sons," prominent parts taken by J. W. Thompson and others. The Daly brothers are announced to open here on the 9th.....At the Odeon Varieties, the most noticeable points in the programme the past week were Dan Howard's banjo thrumming and negro delineations; Charley Fox's Dutch specialties; Maggie Bowers' beautiful songs, and negro acts by Ben Hayes and Joe Mack. At Joe Mack's benefit on Friday night a host of volunteers and a crowded audience assembled. Business has been moderately good. Maggie Bowers closes to-day. Letha Herman is announced to appear on the 9th. So wrote our correspondent "Marcellus," on Sept. 7th.

PERFORMERS in every branch of the profession are wanted by Charley Shay, for his Quincupleral Troupe. See advertisement.

JOE ELLIOT'S AMPHITHEATRE, Bay City, Mich., has suspended operations. The troupe contemplate a tour up the shore of Lake Huron.....Mills' Theatre Comique is doing a fine business. Prof. Fox, imitator, takes well, and performs some really surprising feats. Rice and Williams are among the new faces. Belle Lord, an old favorite, continues popular. Chas May, Johnny Buckills, May Allenetta, Carrie Bunnell fill the programme, which is changed twice a week.

ACKER'S ARCADE GARDEN, Troy, N. Y., still continues to draw crowded houses. Mr. Acker has had the place nicely fitted up for the fall campaign. Pete Cannon, Irish vocalist, was the only new appearance the past week. Charley Gleason was announced to appear on the 2d, but failed to connect.

SALLIE SWIFT, club swinger, is at present performing at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa.

LEONA DARE, female gymnast, can be engaged after Nov. 1st, through her agent, Col. T. A. Brown.

THE OPENING OF THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Washington, D. C., on Sept. 2d, was an event which will be long remembered by the amusement seekers here. The rush for tickets was something quite unparalleled. By the time the curtain rose, the auditorium was actually jammed, every seat being occupied, the aisles filled and the rear of the seats, both on the floor and in the gallery, packed with people as close as could be. The newly painted and decorated interior shone with resplendent lustre when lighted up, and the entire audience were in such a thorough state of good humor that even the advent of the orchestra was the signal for a hearty burst of applause. The programme commenced with an amusing comedietta entitled "Infatuation," in which J. W. Wesley, Miller Beall and George Herman did the most of the acting and appeared to advantage. Dick Parker then gave a banjo solo, interspersed with witty local hits, which met with much applause. A bewitching little beauty named Lula Delmay next came and sang a budget of comic songs with so much esprit and vim that she quite carried the audience by storm, and she was followed by Messrs Mackin and Wilson, who did a double song and dance that, for preciseness and eccentricity of movement, deserves considerable praise. Miss Aline Le Favre, a young lady who is the fortunate possessor of a decidedly voluptuous figure and a very gushing demeanor, then gave a couple of songs, receiving tremendous applause from the gallery, which was probably owing as much to her stunning appearance as to the excellence of her vocal efforts. Jos. W. Wesley and Ada Johnson next appeared in a Dutch duet and wooden shoe dance, entitled "The Hondecultseest," which was eminently clever, but not particularly original. George Herman sang several Irish songs in a satisfactory manner. Otto Burbank introduced some extraordinarily fine jig dancing in a short negro sketch called "The Power of Music," in which he was assisted by Dick Parker. George W. Knight appeared in his Dutch delineations and made an immense success as a magician, performing several feats in a dexterous manner that elicited much applause, and in conjunction with her husband, Mr. Robert Nickle, gave the act of "Second Sight," a source of never ending wonder and amusement to the audiences. The serio-comic vocalism of Miss Nellie Crocker, the character sketches of Miss Nellie Maskell and Valentine Love, and the songs and dances of Harry Kernell, last variety to the programme, which concluded nightly with the sensational drama of "The Female Pirate," in which Miss Nellie Maskell in the title role, and G. B. Radcliffe as Captain Kidd, are deserving of praise for their acting. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nickle, Nellie Maskell and Valentine Love, closed on the 7th inst. The O'Donohue, Irish vocalist and comedian; Miss Dora Dawron, the double-voiced vocalist; Zera, with his dancing figures; Old Dan Gardner, clown, and John J. Fisher, comedian, open on the 9th inst.

THE RAPIDLY GROWING population of the northern section of Philadelphia has caused the opening of several new places of amusement, one of which—the Garden Music Hall, Third street and Girard avenue—was well attended during the week ending Sept. 7th. The programme, rendered by Billy Wright, Charles Devere, Miles. St. Clair, Salina and other artists, afforded lively satisfaction. Mel. Kurtz and William Willingmyre are the proprietors of this theatre.

THE NEW END MUSIC HALL, second above Susquehanna avenue, Philadelphia, has Messrs. Lon Edwards, Fulton Myers, Miss Mollie Jackson, Ricardo Brothers, Billy Rose, and Joe Creamer, stage-manager, in its company.

FAYETTE WELCH commences a four weeks' engagement at the American Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa. on Sept. 16th, and can be addressed as per card elsewhere.

SPALDING & POPE advertise for a combination or minstrel troupe to occupy the new Memphis, Tenn., Theatre, two weeks in October.

GUY LINTON, English vocalist, comedian and dancer, has been engaged for Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., where he will appear about the end of September.

LUCY ADAMS, character vocalist, is still performing at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., where she can be addressed.

SMITH'S OPERA HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., is doing a fine business. The company the past week was as follows:—Stage manager, Charles O. White; Mlle. Russellie, Lou Francis, Minnie Gray, Frank Bennett, Charley Walters, J. W. Morton, Fernando Fleury, Maggie Loraine, Mlle. Olivia, George Wilson and John Murray. The following are the changes:—Closing Sept. 11th, Walters and Morton, who go to Pittsburgh, Pa.; on the 14th, M'lle Olivia, Maggie Loraine and Charles O. White depart, the latter going to take charge of the Olympic Varieties, Memphis, Tenn. The new people billed to appear on the 9th are Mons. Nevini and Zoe Zeonetti, trapeze artists; Jodie Morris, dancer, and John Brassell, Irish, Dutch and Ethiopian artist; on the 12th, Miss Emmazetta, and Messrs. Foly and Wade, song and dance artists; on the 16th, Jennie Benson and Baby Benson, clog, song and dance, and change artists.....A fire on Aug. 30th destroyed a boarding house where a number of the performers resided, by which Lon Francis lost nearly all of a very rich and costly wardrobe. So wrote our correspondent on Sept. 6th.

KATHLEEN O'NEIL, Irish vocalist; Lizzie Shelton, danseuse; Billy Banks, Ethiopian comedian, and Johnny Bartley, bone soloist, opened at the Walnut Street Theatre, Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 2d, to immense business. "The Black Cook," a burlesque, with Willis, Banks, Lizzie Shelton, Emmazetta and the company in it, is said to be running even with success as an afterpiece. The people composing the balance of the company are:—Mollie Macy, banjoist and singer; the La Monte Brothers, gymnasts, who are doing a remarkably fine brother act; Mlle. Cecilie, who seems to lack confidence in herself, not knowing she is a very neat and graceful song and dance performer; Jimmy Gilroy, Dutch song and dance. Mlle. Irma, danseuse, closed on the 4th inst., and went to St. Joseph for two weeks, thence to Memphis, Tenn., eight weeks. Emmazetta goes to Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 12th. Billy Devere, Maud Le Moine and Gussie Lamereaux commence an engagement Sept. 9th. Business never better..... No changes at the Theatre Comique, Abbie Farnsworth and little Dot continuing the principal attraction. Kelly, song and dance artist and contortionist, has recently joined Backenstose's circus, and can be addressed care of this office.

HARRY LESLIE gave a tight-rope ascension at Scranton, Pa., Sept. 5th, and afterwards performed in the pantomime of the "Magic Penny," at the Variety Theatre. After fulfilling an engagement of four weeks at Pittsburgh, Pa., he goes for eleven with Mafitt and Bartholomew's Pantomime Troupe.

MISS LYDIA WEBSTER, club swinger and statue performer; Victoria Howard, vocalist; Tom Huff, song and dance; Miss Leonetta, dancer; Mazori Arnoldi, jig dancer; Master Berry song and dance, and Paul Berger, vocalist, were the fresh appearances at Berry's Theatre Comique, Wilkesbarre, Pa. Turner and Lester appear on the 9th, and on the 16th, the Harrison sisters, three in number; Charles Bowham, Jimmy La Mont, Harry Armstrong and Annetta Strong.

EMILY AND BETTY RIGL, danseuses, at present performing at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Mass., where they can be addressed, will be at liberty to accept engagements after Sep 21st.

DAN SHELBY advertises for a leader of orchestra, who can play E flat, for the Opera House, Syracuse N. Y., which place he has leased for the winter season, commencing Nov. 9th.

TALENT is wanted for the Athenæum Theatre, Keokuk, Iowa. Address the manager, as per card elsewhere.

THE OLYMPIC VARIETIES, in Brooklyn, did a fair business during the week ending Sept. 7th, with Kate Raymond in "The French Spy" and Annie Hindle, Billy Hart, &c., as attractions. Harry McCarthy is the star this week.

AT THE WASHINGTON VARIETIES, Providence, R. I., business has been good during the past week, notwithstanding extra rival attractions. The popularity of Bowman and Harris, and Den and Lillie Howe, does not seem to wane. Dan Guilfoil, song and dance man, left the company to accept an engagement on the 9th.....Stalker and Hopkins' traveling company will appear in Phœnix, R. I., 12th; Apponang, 13th; Westerly 14th, and Norwich, Conn., 18th and 19th. Miss Lizzie Dorrance, Mr. Arthur Keller and Mr. C. H. Newton are additional members of this company.

THE OPENING OF WILD'S, CLEVELAND, O., OPERA HOUSE, on Sept. 2d, was a marked success. The house was crowded to its utmost capacity, standing room being at a premium. The performance opened with a terpsichorean interlude, entitled "La Maitre de Danse," by H. W. Eagan, Miss Josie Farran and Alfred McDowell, which was enthusiastically received. James S. Edwards next appeared, and sang "Down in a Coal Mine," for an encore "Nancy Lee," both being creditably rendered. Miss Jennie Eagan, in her skipping-rope dance, and Quilter and Goldrich, in their double song and dance, were also well received and heartily applauded. Miss Chrissie Morrell sang "Mollie Darling" in a praiseworthy manner, and for an encore, "When the Band Begins to Play." Billy Diamond's bone-solo, an old time "Old Uncle Snow," was a success. Sidney Franks, the London comic, kept the audience in a roar of laughter during his entire performance; Miss Ida Foy did a very neat song and dance, and Young America, the boneless boy, accomplished a difficult feat of passing his body through a nine inch iron hoop. The performance concluded with a musical burlesque of "General Furioso," the cast of which embraces all the prominent people of the company.....Tom. Granger, Jimmy Emerson, Billy Noonan, Alice Bateman and Nellie Howard are the late arrivals at the Theatre Comique, opening on the 2d inst. Emerson and Granger's specialty, "Macahey's Troubles," met with unprecedented success. Nellie Howard's jig was first class, and Alice Bateman and Billy Noonan's double clog was also good. Business very flattering. Manager Montpellier intends opening the Central Rink, of this city, for one week, during the Northern Ohio Fair, commencing on the 9th inst., with a matinee. He has engaged some sixty people in all branches of variety business, and intends giving a good show.

BROOM'S OPERA HOUSE, Memphis, Tenn., is the only one as yet open, though by the end of the month two others will be opened. The company is composed, principally, of Miss Mattie Bianca, Miss Blanche, Mlle. Rosa, Ida Morton, Miss Pauline, Mlle. Albertine, Chas. Petri, Marsh Adams and Johnny Nichols. Additions will be made to the company season after season of the best stars made soon, and during the season some of the best stars in the variety business will, we learn, appear on Broom's stage. During the summer, Manager Billy Buchanan has been busily engaged in repairing and refitting his Olympic Varieties, and we learn that he intends opening about the 21st inst. About the last of this month, Jimmie Schovies, formerly proprietor of the Washington Street Varieties, will open his old place, the Metropolitan, and the Parlor Music Hall, throwing both theatres into one.

AT ROONEY'S VARIETIES, St. Louis, Mo., the new faces were Charlie Seamon, jig and essence dancer; also Miss Minnie Seamon, serio-comic vocalist. Miss Sophie Gordon, who has been suffering from a severe attack of illness, put in a re-appearance Sept. 5th. Eddy Haley, India-rubber song and dance man, was announced for Sunday night, the 8th. Nothing of note beyond these mentioned has occurred.

J. E. CARLTON and Little Josie were the new appearances at Fielding's Opera House, Toledo, O., during the past week. The first is an excellent comedian, and was speedily installed a favorite, while the latter is a sprightly performer, and executed a creditable song and dance. J. E. Carlton and Little Josie were to depart on the 7th, going to Cleveland, O. Miss Nellie Maskell, Frank Bell and Valentine Love, appear on the 9th.

THE GLOBE THEATRE, Chicago, Ill., continues to do a large business, and the programme is rich and spicy and well calculated to please. Wash Norton, Ethiopian comedian and song and dance man; the La Verde children, Charley Benedict and Frank Gibbons opened on the 2d, and were cordially received. Mr. Norton executes a very fair song and dance. Mr. Benedict is introduced in his whim jim's song and dance, which he does finely, receiving rapturous applause. The La Verde children appear in a double clog, which is well done, considering their ages. Bella La Verde appears in character vocalisms later in the evening, and is entitled to praise for voice and style. Frank Gibbons' trapeze act is executed in a neat, daring and accomplished manner. Ella Chapman and Maggie Gray appear in a double song and dance, which is elegantly dressed and neatly executed. Carrie Avery has quietly dropped from the boards, and is no longer connected with the company. Ella Chapman closes on the 7th, and opens in St. Louis the 16th, in company with her sister, Blanche, and Mr. Bishop. The Egyptian Jugglers, Sallie Mason and Prof. Fox (imitator), open on the 9th.....The Halsted Street Opera House will be opened as a variety theatre on the 9th, with a company, including Chas. E. Dobson, Frankie Ettie, Elise Scott, Kitty Whitland, etc.; Theo. Stone & Co., managers; Chas. E. Dobson, director of amusements; Geo. Stevens, musical director. So wrote our correspondent on Sept. 6th.

PROF. BEAMON, ventriloquist, &c., now at the Race Street Varieties, Cincinnati, O., commences an eight weeks' engagement at Major Burnell's Museum, Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 17th.

AT the Detroit, Mich., Theatre Comique, Blanche Selwyn was the only fresh appearance, opening on Sept. 2d. She proved during her engagement at this house a few weeks ago, and sustains her former reputation. A female minstrel band appeared, with Johnny Reese as bones, Billy Hart, tamborine, and Nick Norton as interlocutor, who acquitted themselves in good style. The songs of the ladies would have been better appreciated had they been new. Billy Hart lately has displayed talents of no mean order as a comedian. Sallie Mason and Hannah Birch close on the 7th, the former going to the Globe, Chicago, Ill., and the latter to Cleveland, O. Lottie La Point, Julia Robinson, Mons. Nevini and M'lle Zeonetti also close on the 7th. The Carroll family (four in number) and Prof. St. Maur, are billed for the 9th. So wrote our correspondent on Sept. 6th.

TOM DILLON, character and clog dancer, advertises for an engagement.

Negro Minstrelsy.

DR GRAFF'S MINSTRELS AND BRASS BAND will be at Bath, N. Y., Sept. 25th and 26th; Waverly, 27th, and Horseheads one week during the state fair, commencing Sept. 30th.

THE GEORGIA MINSTRELS, under the management of D. Roberts, commenced a season at Weisiger Hall, Louisville, Ky., Sept. 2d, and have met with success, and deservedly so, as the troupe is as fine a one as any that has ever visited our city. It is composed of eighteen saddle colored darkies, who are of that species that are brim full of melody. The audiences have been very large and appreciative, and the eccentricities of the sable comedians have convulsed them with laughter. "She Wept her Life Away" was beautifully rendered by Zabriski, as was also "Take Me Home," by D. Little. The singing in the choruses showed that no pains had been spared in the musical training of the troupe. The comic songs were immense, and were of the old style that fail to please. The burlesque selections in the second part were very good, and it was impossible to resist the comicalities of Bob Height and Billy Kersands. The success of this troupe goes to disprove the saying that a negro cannot act the "nigger." Much credit is due to Manager Roberts for bringing together such a company. They are to remain here until the exposition closes. So wrote our correspondent on Sept. 5th.

COLLINS AND HULMES' MINSTRELS, an amateur troupe, commence a season at Bridgetor, N. J., Sept. 30th, and remain during the fair, going thence to Doylestown, Pa., on Oct. 1st and 4th; North Wales, 5th; Kuipville, 7th; Bristol, 8th; Bustletown 9th, and Holmesburg, 10th.

LEW JOHNSON'S PLANTATION MINSTRELS performed at Pekin, Ill., Sept. 6th and 7th.

A GOOD COMEDIAN and banjoist, who can sing comic songs, is wanted for the bone end of Dupree & Benedict's Minstrels. Address as per advertisement.

M. B. LAVANT left London, Eng., on Aug. 28th, for a four weeks' tour upon the continent; letters will reach him in care of Moore & Burgess' Minstrels, St. James Hall, London, Eng.

JOHN HOOLEY advertises for first class minstrel talent.

HOOLEY'S OPERA HOUSE.—The opening week of this Brooklyn house, ending Sept. 7th, under the management of John Hooley, proved quite remunerative, and the promise is that the enterprise will prove successful. This week, in addition to the minstrel corps previously engaged, Fayette Welch is to perform in his specialties.

"RICE'S MINSTRELS, the new party just organized by W. Henry Rice, inaugurated their existence at Melodion Hall, Cincinnati, O., on the 2d, before a fair sized audience, and have done a very fair business all the week," so wrote our correspondent on the 6th, adding:—"Though not large, the party is fine. Billy Manning to lead and Walter Bray occupy the ends, and being diverse in style, and withal very humorous, are a strong team. Sam Gardner is the basso and interlocutor. The first part consisted of pleasing ballads by George Hill, Sam Gardner, Gustave Bidaux and R. T. Tyrrell, comic ditties by Manning and Bray, and as a wind-up, the 'Exposition Clog,' by the brass band. The second consisted of Dutch songs and dances by master George Davenport; ballad, with invisible chorus, 'I'll be true, Cassie dear,' by the author, Gustave Bidaux; Walter Bray's 'Carry the News,' and other specialties, which took well; operetta, 'She would be a Prima Donna,' by W. Henry Rice and Sam Gardner, the former giving good parodies of the average cantatrice; Billy Manning, Dutch monologue, as 'Necromancer,' and the farce of 'Peaceable Possession,' by Manning, Bray, Newcomb and Company. The hall is a very handsome one, the scenery seems plentiful and good, and Mr. Rice will probably succeed in his design of making a permanent minstrel hall. Walter Bray closes with the week to go to Pittsburgh, Pa."

AT THE ALHAMBRA THEATRE, San Francisco, Cal., the troupe now playing there, in number and talent, has not been equalled here. The attendance has been brilliant, and nothing but large audiences could well support the manager with the obligations he has to meet. Mr. Clarke, tenor, who is recently from Australia, where he sang with the Lyster Opera Troupe, appeared for the first time in America on the 26th. If he not often so essay a singer's part, his voice is capable of a clear and mellow chest tone. His "Star of Love" was given to immense applause. Mr. Harry O'Neill, also recently from Australia, opened the second part, appearing as a character vocalist a la Lingard. His selection of songs was unfortunate, being all of the jockey type, and uncurred of any local colouring, the point of which was not generally understood. He is said to be quite clever in Irish portraiture, and if any attempt is made in that line he will receive a respectful hearing. After Mr. O'Neill a minstrel revision of "The Stage Struck Barber" was played by Ryman, Burgess and Fanny Gibson. Then Richardrews gave his genuine bit of Southern negro life in "The Watermelon Man," but afterwards destroyed the illusion by dancing hornpipes and reels to Scotch music. Delehanty and Hengler, who followed, were seen to usual advantage in song and dance. It was reserved for Sam Rickey to win the success of the evening as Owen Connolly in "Bad Whisky," supported by Mr. Bob Hart as Sarah Jane. A novelly closed the entertainment in the shape of a pantomime, or more properly speaking, a series of picturesque tableaux illustrative of life on the Indian frontier. The piece moved smoothly, the performers showing the result of thorough rehearsal in the facility and ease of their movements while forming the pictures. The introduction of a magnesium light and colored fires heightened the effect, and "Comanches," the last tableaux are called, made a success. The characters were represented by Ryman, Burgess, Sutton, Delehanty, Hengler, Kemp, Robinson, Rockafeller, Scott, Fanny Gibson, la petite Burgess, and Bob Hart. The preceding is from our correspondent "Sir Toby," dated August 31st.

AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, Japanese Tommy closed on the 31st ult. This week, Moran and Dixey's troupe, with the exception of the end men, appear in white faces, and Lew Brimmer, banjoist, will be added to the company.

SIMMONS AND SLOCUM'S MINSTRELS attracted large audiences, last week, at the Arch Street Opera House, Philadelphia. A new burlesque, "John Sheppard and Joseph Blueskin," is now being rehearsed.

Circuses.

THE GREAT EASTERN MENAGERIE, CIRCUS AND MUSEUM, performed at Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 5th, and the route ahead is Marion, S. C., 9th; Sumter, 10th; Columbia, 11th; Augusta, Ga., 12th, and Charleston, S. C., 13th and 14th.

FOREPAUGH'S MAMMOTH AGGREGATION is to perform at Pekin, Ill., Sept. 9th; Peoria, 10th, and Canton, O., 11th.

GRADY'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE will show at Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 9th; Rushville, 10th; Knightstown, 11th; Cambridge City, 12th; Germantown, 13th and Richmond, 14th. They are reported as having done a good business for some weeks past, save at Attica, Ind., where, it is alleged, some of the inhabitants try to beat every show that comes there by renting a lot that a number of them own and for the use of which they all claim pay.

KLIPPART & CO.'s CIRCUS, MUSEUM AND MENAGERIE is announced to perform at Volcano, W. Va., Sept. 9th; Parkersburg, 10th; Coolville, O., 11th; Syracuse, 12th; Middleport, 13th, and Gallipolis, 14th. Business reported excellent.

MASTER FELLON, the "Iron Boy," traveling with the Crystal Palace Circus in Oregon, is creating quite a sensation in the performances of feats of strength.

THE ORRIN BROS. and Mlle. Lucia Orrin, acrobats and gymnasts, at present traveling with C. W. Noyes' circus, can be engaged. Their address is care of this office.

THE COMMON COUNCIL of Kalamazoo (Mich) have resolved to grant a license to only one circus a year.

THOMAS HURLEY, who is confined in jail at Chicago for shooting John Pattison, is not the Thomas Hurley for several years connected with many circuses, lately with S. Q. Stokes' company, and who is now residing with his parents in Chicago, Ill.

P. T. BARNUM'S SHOW is to exhibit at Rockford Ill., Sept. 24th; Elgin 25th; Janesville, Wis., 26th; Fond du Lac, 27th; Green Bay, 28th; Neenah, 30th; Oshkosh, Oct. 1st; Watertown, 2d; Milwaukee, 3d and 4th; Racine, 5th; and Chicago, Ill., one week, commencing the 7th.

C. W. NOYES' CRESCENT CITY CIRCUS performed at Steubenville, O., Sept. 5th; Moundsville, 6th; Parkersburg, W. Va., 7th; and are to be at Marietta on the 9th.

CHARLEY WITTMAN, of the Great Eastern Menagerie, has returned to Philadelphia, Pa., on account of illness, his position of contracting agent being temporarily supplied by John Dingess.

THE NORTH AMERICAN CIRCUS and "Humpty Dumpty" pantomime troupe is to exhibit at Tolland, Conn., Sept. 9th; Glastenbury, 10th, and Middletown, 11th and 12th, at which latter place they will close the season.

W. J. Metchear, who had the side show privilege, has taken his company for a tour of the state fairs. He opened at Lowell, Mass., Sept. 3d, and will visit Readville, 12th and 13th; Myricks, 18th and 20th; Taunton, 24th and 26th; Bridgwater, 27th and 28th, and Marshfield, 2d and 4th. His attractions are Mme. Clarke, giant lady; Maj. Blurn, the little man; J. W. Sprague, living skeleton; Lelia Ma Zada, Circassian girl; a mermaid, and a snake with two heads.

"OLD" JOHN ROBINSON'S CIRCUS, MENAGERIE AND MUSEUM exhibited in Washington, D. C., on Sept. 6th and 7th, and attracted immense crowds. Over five thousand were said to be present at the evening performance on the 6th, and numbers were turned away from the ticket wagon.

STONE AND MURRAY'S CIRCUS is billed ahead as follows: Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 11th; Hyde Park, 12th; South Canton, 13th; Natick, 14th; Woonsocket, R. I., 16th; North Attleboro, Mass., 17th, and Providence, R. I., 18th and 19th. Business reported excellent.

LENT'S NEW YORK CIRCUS is to commence a brief season at St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 9th, thence east. Business is reported as improving.

ROBSTON, STRINGER & HENDERSON'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE exhibited at Lockport, N. Y., Sept. 3d, doing a good business. The arenic performances were, in some instances, very noteworthy. Mr. Rudolf's riding was graceful, while his back somersaults on horseback were feats of considerable daring. The Arab troupe, which forms a prominent feature, displayed strength and agility. The company are traveling eastward, and showed in Rochester on the 6th and 7th.

THE CHIARINI CIRCUS, with full paraphernalia, arrived in San Francisco, Cal., overland from Chicago, Ill., on Aug. 30th. The troupe have taken up their old quarters on Jackson street, and would probably be prepard to exhibit during the week commencing Sept. 2d.
